American Army Embarkation Area, Eecomoy, France, Feb. 17 (By Mail).—The 26th Division, which the people of New England are soon to have the joy of welcoming home, was the first American unit organized as a division in the United States and transported complete to France. The units from the regular army that came earlier with General Pershing, were organized into divisions on this side of the water.

The 26th Division was the first made up of National Guard organizations to leave the United States and the first National Guard combat division in history to set foot on European soil.

It participated in the first two battles in which Americans were engaged without the support of French infantry.

It was the first American unit to occupy a division front, assuming this responsibility when it relieved the First Division in the Toul sector on Easter Sunday morning, in 1918. Previously the few American divi-

Keep on Eating Fish! American Stores Sell at Cost

Keep on eating fish!

Thousands of whole families are doing so. Boston American fish stores are not only doing a rushing business each day, but their customers are returning again and again to buy fish at cost and reduce the cost of living. Fully one-half of the customers of the stores established by the American to sell fish for five and six cents are the same day after day.

They have learned to eat fish daily; to substitute it for meat and other high-priced foods. This proves that the American is accomplishing one of the chief purposes for which it opened these stores—to popularize the use of fish, not as a once-a-week food, but as an every-day food.

Worcester Banker in Great Hurry Flies to New York

Worcester, March 11.—How to get to New York in three hours for an important meeting was the problem that today confronted Ralph H. Mann, president of the Park Trust Company. There was only one answer—fly there!

Which he did. Mr. Mann chartered a machine from the Curtiss Company, with Lieutenant Charles S. Jones as pilot, and left Curtiss Field, about two miles out of the city, at 1 p. m. All the employees of the trust company turned out to see their chief depart.

The New York meeting was called by directors of a large corporation in which Mr. Mann is interested.

WHOLESALERS GOT FISH FOR TWO CENTS

That the big Boston wholesalers paid as low as two cents a pound for fish last Friday at the local fish pier, was admitted today in Superior Court by Patrick Anderson, president of the Atlas Fish Company, and one of the fish dealers on trial charged with trade irregularities.

The admission was brought out in cross examination by Attorney Hurlburt for the Bay State Fish Company, after Mr. Anderson had made the claim that wholesalers do not make more than a penny profit per pound on fish.

Mr. Anderson, who was on the stand all day yesterday, was the main witness today, and was severely questioned by Attorney Hurlburt regarding meetings of the big fish dealers at the Boston City Club, and the alleged discussion there of a combination between the competitors.

"It was suggested at one of those meetings that we get a better profit," Mr. Anderson admitted.

"How were you going to get a bet-[illegible]" asked Attorney Hurlburt.

"By raising prices," said the president of the Atlas and shareholder in the Boston Fish Pier Companies.

He remembered that a syndicate was discussed, but for the purpose of buying equipment cheaply, not for the purpose of buying fish, or price fixing. Practically all those fish dealers who attended the City Club meetings later became identified with the Boston Fish Pier Company, the witness told the cross-examiner.

considerable testimony was taken regarding the attempt at co-operative buying in the matter of steam trawlers. The witness was asked regarding his first meeting with F. Munroe Dyer, now president of the Bay State Fish Company.

Anderson admitted that he "had a little hard feeling" when the Bay State Company refused to put it's fish through the fish exchange, and thought that this was unjust to the other dealers. Attorney Hurlburt had earlier in the trial characterized the fish exchange as an agency through which the majority of the fish dealers controlled the local market.

HALF OF Y. D. COMING ON 7 SHIPS

Pershing Sends Official Notice of Departure From France Early Next Month

One-half of the Yankee Division will leave France for Boston during the first two weeks in April. This official announcement was received today from General Pershing, commander of the American forces in France.

The troops will come here on the following ships: George Washington, Mount Vernon, America, Kroonland, President Grant, Von Steuben and Agamemnon. All of these ships will dock at Boston.

It is expected that the remaining half of the division will follow as rapidly as convoys can be arranged. The exact dates of departure were not contained in the cable from France.

Meanwhile here in Boston General Edwards and his staff are going about the making of plans for billeting the members of the division, when they come down to the city for parade. Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff, declared today these plans are progressing rapidly.

PREPARING FOR PARADE.

Present arrangements call for moving half of the division from Camp Devens to this city on the night before the parade. The remaining half will be brought down on the morning of the day of the parade. Were it planned to bring the entire division to Boston on one day serious interference with the railroad schedules might result.

To move so great a body of troops at one time would require at least 400 passenger coaches. To use so many would seriously interfere with the usual passenger traffic and add the additional trend of commuters who would be coming into Boston for the parade and reception.

Then again the question of billeting so great a body of men must be considered. There were some who ad-

NURSE IS ACCUSED OF $234 THEFT OF LINEN

Katherine Brooks, thirty, of Pine street, Cambridge, was in East Boston court today charged with the larceny of linen valued at $234, the property of Savero Di Donato, of No. 238 Webster street, East Boston. The case was continued until Thursday. The larceny occurred on Dec. 26, according to testimony. Katherine Brooks was nursing the sick wife of Di Donato. It was testified Di Donato was in conversation with a friend, John C. Hodges of No. 265 Seventh street, South Boston, who told him of the beautiful linen he had received for a Christmas present. Di Donato saw the linen and identified it as his.

What Is a "Mattress Voter?" Lomasney Tells

Question by Joseph F. O'Connell, counsel for former Congressman Peter F. Tague, in cross-examination of Mr. Lomasney at Tague-Fitzgerald contested election hearing.

"I ask you for a definition of a mattress voter?"

Mr. Lomasney: "A mattress voter is a man who has a respectable wife and family in one part of the city and who, without having any family differences which would cause him to stay away from home, goes to another man's home and stays and registers from that address. To illustrate! You are a mattress voter, and Paddy Goggan is a mattress voter, and there are others I can name, and, furthermore, if there ever was an investigation of the navy yard while Tague was in Congress during the war some of the men in the ropewalk under Superintendent Turnbull would still be running to the wilds of Canada."

CALLS PLUNKETT 'SECRET ENEMY OF IRELAND'

Sir Horace Plunkett has never been a "friend to Ireland, but always a secret enemy," and is in reality a British propagandist, according to Mary Boyle O'Reilly, daughter of the late poet and patriot, John Boyle O'Reilly.

Miss O'Reilly, in a letter to the American today, praises this newspaper for its report of Sir Horace Plunkett's speech at Boston College yesterday, where his anti-self-determination remarks drew forth a statement from the college authorities that Sir Horace's speech before the student body was, in the words of Rev. Father Gerald C. Treacy, "ill-advised."

Miss O'Reilly quotes the late John E. Redmond, the Home Rule leader, as her authority for saying that Sir Horace Plunkett had never been a friend to Ireland, but a secret enemy.

Sir Horace, who spent yesterday in Boston as the guest of W. F. Fitzgerald, the head of the banking firm of Fitzgerald Hubbard Co., at 99 Milk street, left town today for New Haven.

Miss O'Reilly, a woman of brilliant attainments and the daughter of the man who probably was Ireland's most famous political exile in recent years, is a gifted magazine and news writer and speaker.

Miss O'Reilly writes, under date of March 10:

"Permit me to thank the American for tonight's exposure of the true character of Sir Horace Plunkett's mission in this country. The few American papers which are now receiving support from the English press propaganda will attempt to present him to their readers as a representative Irish leader. Mr. John Red-

Fire Damages Arlington Store

GERMAN ARMY LAYS SIEGE TO LEIPZIG

By International News Service.

London, March 11.—Dispatches from Zurich, Switzerland, say that Leipzig, which has been the storm centre of fighting for several days, is under attack on three sides by government troops. The attackers are using artillery and are employing airplanes to direct the attack, said advices received here today.

The battle opened on Sunday.

MORE THAN 1,000 SLAIN.

More than 1,000 persons have been killed and 2,000 injured in the fighting the past week in Berlin, according to advices reaching here. The scenes are reported as more terrible than those of the French Revolution.

The Reds dragged naked prisoners through the streets and then killed them with hand grenades. Officers were killed by having their throats cut.

The battles raging in the suburbs of Berlin are said to be of the fiercest character. The damage in the vicinity of Alexanderplatz is estimated at 40,000,000 marks (approximately, $8,000,000).

Herr Pfemfert, publisher of a German newspaper, was arrested today on the charge that he helped organize the counter revolt in Berlin, said a dispatch from that city.

AUTOIST CHARGED WITH CAUSING BOY'S DEATH

The case of Joseph Gandolfo, thirty-three, of Pine street, Swampscott, charged with causing the death of eight-year-old Angelo Clifoni through reckless driving of an automobile, was continued to March 13 by Judge Harnes in the East Boston Court today. The child lived at No. 380 Chelsea street, East Boston, and died last Friday night, a few hours after the accident.

MORE MEN DESIGNATED FOR EARLY RETURN

Washington, D. C., March 11.—The War Department announced this afternoon that the following organizations of the A. E. F. had been assigned to early convoy: Base hospitals number 8, 21, 45, 46 and 118; transportation corps companies numbers 801, 803, 113 and 114; 10th anti-aircraft battalion.

THREAT TO JAIL "STOOL PIGEON"

An uproar came in the Tague-Fitzgerald hearing in the Federal building today when Representative Martin M. Lomasney of Ward 5, under cross-examination by Joseph F. O'Connell, counsel for Tague, burst out:

"I will tear the mask off this whole affair before I get through with you, Mr. O'Connell. I understand that Vincent Brogna caught John W. Ryan using a United States marshal's badge in doing Tague's dirty work, acting as a stool-pigeon under the guise of a federal investigator in Ward 5."

O'Connell: "Do you know what perjury means, Mr. Lomasney?"

Lomasney: "I surely do. I took the oath before I took the witness stand and I am standing by it. But you have more reason to know what perjury means than I do."

John F. Feeney, counsel for Fitzgerald aide:

Lomasney: "You'd better keep your eye on Tague or he will faint pretty soon."

Mr. Lomasney turned directly toward Tague and swept on:

"I'll put your stool-pigeon in the pen. Defy me! Defy me! Stand up, Mr. Tague! Take off the seal, of confidence and I'll read that letter which I promised to read yesterday."

The laughter drove O'Connell to appealing to Notary Berman to exclude demonstrants from court, saying:

"This man Mancovitz (notary presiding at Fitzgerald testimony) sits there and grins and refuses to preserve order. I ask you, Mr. Berman, to order demonstrants excluded."

Mancovitz, after vain effort to interrupt O'Connell, said: "Mr. O'Connell, I'll allow you three minutes to retract this insult to me or I shall exclude you and ask Mr. Tague to be represented by other counsel."

O'Connell: "Oh, is that so—"

PACKED COURT SAYS O'CONNELL.

Lomasney: "Mr. Mancovitz, I hope you won't drive Mr. O'Connell out. This is too good. Let him keep on. We've got him going."

O'Connell: "Mr. Lomasney, you can't get away with this Hendricks Club stuff here. I charge you with having packed the room with Hendricks Club members to embarrass our aide."

R. I. SENATORS HISSED BY 1,000 LABOR MEN

Wild Demonstration Against Those Who Voted Against Full Manhood Suffrage

Providence, R. I., March 11.—One of the wildest demonstrations in the history of State politics occurred here in the Senate when 1,000 labor men rose to their feet and, directing their wrath against thirty senators who voted against the abolition of the property qualification for voters, hooted, hissed and jeered while Senate attendants endeavored in vain to stem the uprising.

The labor men attended at the Senate in a body headed by Thomas F. McMahon, international vice-president of the Textile Workers of the United States and Canada. Their appearance was the result of a convention, held last Sunday, at which all labor men were requested to visit the State House today and register their protest at the retention of any legislation barring the full manhood vote.

GERMANY SHORN OF ARMY STRENGTH, ALLIES TAKE UP SEA POWER

PEACE COUNCIL TO SET LIMIT ON SIZE OF NAVY

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 11.—With the military terms to be imposed upon Germany settled and out of the way, the Supreme War Council prepared today to take up naval matters. It is expected that a decision as to the naval terms to be incorporated in the peace treaty will be reached before nightfall.

It is expected that the German delegates will be called in March 20 and handed a preliminary draft of the peace terms. The possibility of her refusal to accept them is already being considered. What measures the allies will take in that event are now being discussed.

GENERAL STAFF DOOMED.

The military terms decided on for Germany will make her virtually impotent, even against small nations like Switzerland. Her army will be reduced to 100,000 men, the number of officers must be held to 4,000 and her armaments will be limited. Few if any aircraft, even for commercial purposes, will be allowed by the allies.

"What will become of the German General Staff" someone asked, when the terms were made public.

"Gone with all its paraphernalia." was the reply from a peace delegate familiar with the terms.

WOULD CONTINUE BLOCKADE.

The allies are in no mood to wait for a long-drawn-out decision. When the final terms are reached they will hand them over to the Germans. The belief now is that if the terms are accepted everything will be worked out within a reasonable time. But there seems to be a disposition among some of the Germans to bluff and force the allies to send troops into the country to compel a fulfilment of the terms. Whether this is done in the event of the non-acceptance of the terms by the Germans is still a question.

The allies, of course, might refuse to be caught in this trap and simply say: "All right, go home and we will continue the blockade." This would result in suffering for the innocent, but if the allies were forced to take this course it is believed the Germans would not hold out very long.

Who will make up the personnel of the delegation is not uncertain, but it is known that the allies have sent word that they did not want to treat with Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, because his presence would be an insult to both France and the United States.

The protracted discussion of military terms to be imposed on Germany has disrupted the program for the peace conference this week.

The discussion of the northern Italian frontier had to be put off until today by the Council of Ten. The future status of Constantinople, which is classed among the urgent matters, was to come up today, also, if it could be crowded in.

TO SPEED UP DECISIONS.

Premier Clemenceau, Colonel E. M. House and Premier Lloyd George have decided to act along broad lines with a view to speeding up decisions on vital matters now pending.

It is understood that a decision has been reached that quicker results can be obtained on the reparation question if the approximate lump sum, due from Germany, is given by the commission with the details filled in later.

No further light has been shed so far on the plan to throw back the German frontier eastward. This matter is still in the hands of the commission dealing with it. But the Council of Ten hopes to tackle it immediately after President Wilson arrives.

The French military historian, Joseph Reinach, stated today that France will insist that her frontier in the future shall the face of a German todian, says that it is solid silver, soldier be seen in the Rhine valley. but will not tell where it came from.

Blockade of Enemy to Be Lifted Soon, Says Geddes

London, March 11 (British wireless service).—A lifting of the blockade against the Central Powers within the next few weeks was predicted by Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service, speaking in the House of Commons.

"It is hoped," said Sir Auckland, "that this special barrier will be set aside within the next few weeks.

"The general policy of the Board of Trade is to endeavor to keep down the market price of raw material to a level not higher than the anticipated post war price of the material.

"Raw materials will come in free. Semi-manufactured articles necessary for manufacture in this country will come in free except so far as produced by an industry which requires shielding here. Manufactured articles will be subject to restrictions."

LODGE AND LOWELL TO DEBATE LEAGUE MARCH 19

Symphony Hall has been chosen for the joint debate between United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University on the proposed covenant of a League of Nations. It will occur at 8 p. m., Wednesday evening, March 19.

Senator Lodge and President Lowell themselves agreed upon this at a conference following a meeting of the Harvard board of overseers. Immediately afterwards Governor Coolidge was asked to preside at the debate and announced that he would do so.

The meeting of these two famous men will not be open to the general public. Admission will be by ticket. The hall seats 2,500 persons.

Silverware valued at about $600 is stored at the Revere Police Station awaiting a claimant. Captain William E. Patten, who is acting as custodian, says that it is solid silver, soldier be seen in the Rhine valley.

BRITISH BITTER AGAINST THE AMERICANS

French, Too, Wish Our Soldiers Would Pack Up and Leave

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

The attack on American fighting men by British police was not a surprise to people who have been in London lately. If anything, the feeling of the British against American troops—soldiers and sailors—is more bitter than it is in France. And in France it is bitter enough.

The hostility of the British, particularly the British "Tommy," has been noticeable since the signing of the armistice. It existed before then, but for reasons of policy apparently it was held in check.

There are several explanations of it. First, there is the British belief which is becoming a mania, that we should have got into the war long before we did. The British soldier and sailor talk about how their navy held the Boche away from our coasts while we sat back and stacked and made money selling them munitions.

It may count to some of them that they had fairly good reasons of their own for holding back the Yanks; but if it does, they never say anything about it.

Then the American doughboy and the American gob have more money in their pockets than do their British colleagues, and they are never slow in spending it.

"DISLIKE ON ALL SIDES."

One immediate result of this is, that the British damsel prefers escorts who "loosen" at the restaurant and at the movie box office, and the British fighting man often stands and bites his lips while his girl goes by with a Yankee. This, of course, breeds bitterness; for since the beginning of the world nothing was so productive of trouble as girl-stealing.

One reason that the Y. M. C. A. has done far better in England than it has elsewhere, overseas is that the "Y" huts furnish the only shelters in England where the American soldier and sailor is made at home.

He is a stranger in a strange land, and not a welcome stranger. He is never invited into the homes of his fellow fighting men in British khaki. He is left to shift for himself and to entertain himself, and no one appears to care if he looks lonesome and forlorn, and American always is in a strange countries unless some one comes forward to speak a kind word to them.

Whatever our lads may be at home, they are shy and ill at ease in strange lands. And they feel deeply the evidences of dislike that they see on all sides in England.

In France it is little different, although there is never such evident and visible evidence of dislike, and never so many streets fights, albeit there are a couple of these every night on the Paris boulevards.

One of the chief reasons for mutual dislike in France between our boys and the police is the difference in speech.

"FRIENDSHIP IN PARIS."

American soldiers who have learned a little French get along far better than those who haven't. In the outlying towns, where they have been billeted with French families, our soldiers get along pretty well. Some of them marry French wives and take them home. Others sort of adopt French families and play Santa Claus to them, to the mutual delight of all concerned.

But in Paris there is little sign of friendship.

French soldiers go about by themselves, never mixing with Americans, and carefully avoiding them whenever possible.

The French papers have printed many stories of outrageous conduct by American soldiers, but most of them, run to earth, prove utterly without foundation.

SPARTACANS IN BERLIN BLOWN TO ATOMS

BOMBING ORDERED BY NOSKE.

Airmen, directed by Herr Noske, rained tons of bombs on Spartacan headquarters, gun emplacements and underground stations. Government troops and Spartacans perished together.

Central Berlin looks worse today than London or Paris ever was after an air raid. Enormous craters gape on every hand. Whole buildings have been destroyed and five subway stations are in ruins.

Every appliance of modern warfare, including bombs containing tons of explosives and tear bombs, were used during the fighting.

An airman, whom the government authorities insist was a Spartacan, dropped a bomb on a crowd of unarmed civilians, killing four and wounding twenty-five.

Spartacans, supported by sailors, stormed the city prison and released 500 prisoners, some of them dangerous criminals.

The streets leading to Moabit prison were barricaded by the government troops with barbed-wire entanglements.

Wilhelmstrasse, where the government buildings are located, was closed. The entrances were covered with huge posters bearing the inscription: "Who goes here will be shot!"

The Spartacans have been driven back from the central part of the city to the eastern part. Some devastated by the water route, seizing barges and tugboats in the Spree River. A stray hand grenade fell in a branch postoffice building during the fighting in Arnswalder Platz, killing two persons.

THEATRE SHELLED.

Government troops brought up artillery and shelled the Spartacan theatre, called the "Volks Buehnene." Mines were exploded also.

The Spartacans have converted this building into a fortress. Those defending it were soon driven out and the building was destroyed.

As an example of the recklessness of the Spartacans they built barricades in the street of flour and sugar. These were destroyed by the government troops with grenades and mines.

Street cars were not in operation today as the conductors and motormen refused to go to work until paid for the time they were on strike. The employees refused to do this.

Industrial workers have promised to go back to work on condition that the troops evacuate the factories.

Reparation From Germany Now Set at $40,000,000,000

London, March 11 (By British government wireless).—The total cost of the war to the allies is estimated by the Daily Mail Gazette at $120,000,000,000. This does not include the incalculable damage done by the German troops in the area they occupied, especially France and Belgium.

The reparation commission appointed by the peace conference has decided that Germany shall pay $40,000,000,000, this paper learns on good authority. It can be seen that this total represents only a small part of the total cost of the war to the entente powers. The main point to be determined by this commission was not what Germany should pay, but what she could pay, continues the Paul Mall.

Governor Pleads for Kindness in "Animal Week"

In a proclamation setting aside the week from April 21 to April 27 as "Be Kind to Animals Week," Governor Coolidge today says that it is particularly fitting to urge kindness to the dumb beasts at the close of a war fought to relieve the weak from the oppression of the strong.

"It has been determined," continues the proclamation, "that men live by reason, and not by might alone. It is fitting that the humane sentiment of mankind be given expression and form by thought and action for the protection and comfort of their best friends and natural comrades, the dog, the horse, the beast of burden and their kind in the animal world.

"This is not a matter of sentimentality."

The proclamation closes with the injunction that the people observe the week by increased thought and care for the beasts of the field and the birds of the air which minister without ceasing to our common welfare.

N. Y. STRIKERS PLAN TO TIE UP HARBOR

Cancellation of Agreement With Railroad Chiefs Hinted at by Marine Workers

By International News Service.

New York, March 11.—With 20,000 longshoremen idle and 7,000 marine workers still on strike here today, cancellation of the agreement between the Railway Administration and several thousand strikers who returned to work was hinted at by Thomas Delahunty, president of the Marine Workers' Association. Reports have been received, Delahunty asserted, that the Railroad Administration is assisting the boat owners against whom the strike is still in effect.

"If this report proves true," the union leader added, "the Railroad Administration will be given an opportunity to halt the practice. If it fails to do so, the strike will be extended again to the entire harbor.

Efforts of Federal Conciliator James Hughes to settle the controversy between the boat owners and employes failed late yesterday and he has returned to Washington. The fact that he took a map of Cuba to the national capital led to reports that government intervention in the strike was imminent.

Boston Ready to Handle Any Troopships Diverted by Strike From New York

While the Northeastern Department has not heard of any plan to divert troopships scheduled for New York to Boston owing to the waterfront strike in that city, the department is ready to act on short notice should such a plan be ordered. On one day's notice the Boston offices would be prepared.

Major Michael J. Moore, adjutant-general of the department, said:

"We have every facility of taking care of the troopships arriving here and we only ask a day's notice.

"We are only too anxious to prove our efficiency in this direction. Every troopship that we have handled at this port has been handled expeditiously. There has been no delay. Send Boston all the troopships and we'll prove that we can give a warm welcome to the boys."

DRASTIC LAWS TO BLOCK U. S. REVOLUTION

Senate Committee Ready to Cope With Conditions; Writers Are Quoted

By International News Service.

Washington, March 11.—Impressed more by the statement of Solicitor-General Lamar that radicals in the United States were combining to wage a revolution for the overthrow of the American government, than by witnesses' descriptions of conditions in Russia under Bolshevik rule, the senate committee investigating Bolshevism today was practically decided to recommend to the next congress the enactment of drastic laws aimed to stamp out any breding nests of revolution.

Members of the committee frankly admitted that Solicitor-General Lamar's memorandum filed yesterday had served, more than any other factor, to emphasize the Red menace existing in the United States.

It was too early, members said, to indicate just what the recommendation of the committee would be, but they made it plain that on the face of evidence now before them, laws more drastic than any ever before placed on the statute books would be needed to cope with the situation.

It was said that Solicitor Lamar had placed before the committee only a comparatively small portion of the evidence in his possession, and the possibility that he would amplify his memorandum was hinted.

WRITERS ARE QUOTED.

The scope of the Bolshevik propaganda, in support of their plans for the overthrow of the United States government was further revealed this afternoon when Major E. Lowrey Humes, acting counsel for the committee, put in the record of the committee articles from more than a hundred industrial, labor and radical newspapers.

The matter put in the records included quotations from the writings of President Wilson, Senator La Follette, Karl Marx and Arthur Brisbane.

Major Humes stated, "I do not propose to sit idly by and be governed unless I have a voice in saying how I shall be governed," printed in the Defence News Bulletin of Chicago on October 16 last, was marked for insertion in the record. A part of a recent speech by Senator La Follette in which he declared that the money power of the United States had been strong enough to defeat the will of the American people in their dealings with Russia, which was printed in the California Defence Bulletin on January 15, also went into the record.

Many cartoons by Boardman Robinson and Robert Minor, which showed labor menacing capital, were inserted in the record by Major Humes.

BRISBANE EDITORIAL.

The following quotation from Karl Marx was marked for printing in the record each time it was found:

"Workers of all countries, unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains; you have the world to gain."

An editorial by Arthur Brisbane in the Washington Times of February 19, which commented upon photographs showing the Russian army in fighting trim and Russian industry running, to the effect that American newspaper writers avidently misunderstood conditions in Russia, was entered as evidence.

WESTLAKE WITH MORE SOLDIERS NEARING PORT

The steamship Westlake with three officers and nineteen enlisted men is due in Boston tomorrow. The Westlake carries a heavy cargo of freight, which will be discharged here. Northeastern headquarters received information today that the Westlake was battling at a five-knot clip against a heavy wind and sea.

The Westlake sent the following message: "Three officers and nineteen enlisted men aboard. No sick or wounded. No clothing required. No bodies. One half ton of officer's baggage. Troops have all been equipped; $30 tons miscellaneous government cargo. At noon, March 10, three hundred miles northeast of Nantucket. Strong winds blowing westerly. Because of this, making five knots an hour."

BOSTON SPEECH BY PLUNKETT STIRS IRISH

Plea for Home Rule Under British Control Arouses Sharp Criticism

mond told me in 1914 that Sir Horace Plunkett had never been a friend to Irish Ireland, but always a secret enemy. Plunkett's persistent policy has been that of the English secret service, 'divide and rule.'

"While the Irish Parliamentary party was in power Plunkett organized and conducted a campaign of slander against the Nationalist members of Parliament, individually and collectively. During the war he was a prime mover in Lloyd George's scheme to raise the Irish conscription protracted and futile. Now that the Sinn Fein party controls the political situation in Ireland he defends home rule.

MALICIOUS BUT NOT DANGEROUS.

"He now comes to this country as an alleged friend of Ireland. He is, in reality, a malicious but not dangerous enemy. The publicity which the American gave to Boston College's protest against Sir Horace Plunkett's 'ill-advised remarks' will, we may hope, foil his schems to spread England's cause in the United States.

"Faithfully yours,

(Signed) "Mary Boyle O'Reilly."

Following Sir Horace's speech at Boston College in which he opposed an independent Ireland, Father Treacy, senior professor of philosophy and former editor of "America," issued a statement in which he asserted that "Boston College is not accountable for any of the ill-advising opinions of Sir Horace."

STIRS UP PEMPEST.

Irish leaders in Boston and New England also condemned Sir Horace's remarks. They were unanimous in declaring that Ireland was as much entitled to the right of self-determination as some of the 14 states which are being represented at the peace conference.

Because of the scope of activities here, Sir Horace addressed the student body and members of the faculty of Boston College, partook of a luncheon at the Algonquin Club, at which he was the guest of a circle of Boston Irishmen of Irish extraction, was received in the Senate, where he delivered a speech, and was given a formal reception at City Hall by Mayor Peters.

At almost every stopping point in his itinerary, but mostly in private, Sir Horace expressed the viewpoint that complete separation of Ireland from the other three countries which constitute the United Kingdom would be out of the question.

At the same time Sir Horace told the American representative in reply to a question, that with the surrender of the German fleet the possible military menace to Ireland had been removed.

"The partition of Ireland," he told reporters at City Hall in Mayor Peters' executive office, "would be a one-horse show—an extreme danger to the peace of the world, and a temptation to every nation that would desire to set foot in Ireland."

At the conclusion of his reception by the Mayor and city officials, Sir Horace was granted a brief interview to an American reporter.

"I believe that the Irish question must be settled and is going to be settled, and its settlement is now very nearly in sight," he said.

HAVE MADE PROGRESS.

"There has been a great deal of dissension and criticism growing out of the conferences of Ireland Convention which was representative of all political factions and creeds. It has been said that we have made no progress toward the solution of the Irish question, but it should be remembered that we have made very great advances in study and thought. The two big factors that stand out against the solution of the Irish question are military and economic."

In regard to the military question, Sir Horace conceded that the Sinn Fein party favored the withdrawal of British troops from Ireland.

"Is it correct to say, as has been stated, that Ireland today is nine-tenths Sinn Fein?" Sir Horace was asked.

"I would say that Ireland is more than three-fourths Sinn Fein," he replied, and then added in response to another question regarding Leinster, which includes Dublin, the capital, that Leinster was more than nine-tenths Sinn Fein."

FLOOD OF PROTESTS AGAINST HIGH RATES TO GAS CONSUMERS

CALL FOR OFFICIAL INQUIRY

Roxbury Citizens File Formal Demand to Get All the Facts

When Mrs. Bessie Waldman, of No. 79 Maywood street, Roxbury, told the American her gas troubles last week she started something.

Mrs. Waldman's story, printed by the American, told of her monthly gas bill in a four-room flat heated by a furnace jumping in a few months from $1.80 a month in October to $12.40 in December. She refusing to pay the bill, whereat the Boston Consolidated Gas Company threatened to cut off her supply of gas, March 6.

Following Mrs. Waldman's courageous kick, many of her neighbors joined in the protest to the company against the high gas rates being charged them.

WELCOME INVESTIGATION.

These protests have been so numerous that they have called forth a statement from E. N. Wrightington, vice-president and treasurer of the Gas Company, in which he says the company welcomes an investigation of its charges.

"The Boston Consolidated Gas Company has always held the public confidence," said Mr. Wrightington today, "it wants to keep it. With that end in view it welcomes an investigation of its books, which are always open, and its methods."

Meanwhile scores of people are frequenting the headquarters of the company at No. 24 Tremont street, complaining of what they term big overcharges in their monthly gas bills.

Mrs. Waldman, whose story to the American, started the ball rolling, has refused to pay her gas charges until they have been more equitably adjusted and her gas has not, as was threatened, been shut off by the company.

URGES METER READINGS.

"I recommend that every gas consumer make frequent readings of his meter, in order that he may be satisfied that his bill is correct when rendered and that he actually has consumed the amount of gas specified," said Mr. Wrightington.

He added that the general sales of gas are less than they were a year ago. To show that when a meter errs it generally is in favor of the consumer, Mr. Wrightington submitted the following table of meters of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company tested from July 1, 1918 to December 31, 1918, including tests by the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners:

Correct	4,569	13.2
Slow	998	12.6
Stuck and non-registering	3	0
Fire	79	0
Hawley street
Total correct or against company	6,852	83.1%
Fast	1,326	16.9
Total	7,875	100 %

Average % fast of the fast meters....4.05%
Average % slow of the slow meters....3.2%

INSTALL RECORDING METER.

Regarding the case of Mrs. Bessie Waldman, Mr. Wrightington stated that the company had installed a recording meter in her house which registers every five feet of gas used and accounts for every hour of the day in order that a true gas consumption may be shown.

"I would personally be glad to meet the delegation of dissatisfied customers, whether from Roxbury or other sections of the city, before the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, and explain their bills," said Mr. Wrightington.

Mrs. Waldman continues to owe the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, the sum of $18.67, if the company's figures are correct.

Under date of March 5 Mrs. Waldman received the following letter from Mr. Wrightington:

"Dear Madam:

"My attention has been called to an interview in the Boston American of yesterday regarding your gas bill.

"I should be glad to see you about your account if it is convenient for you to call.

Mrs. Waldman is a poor woman, with five children, the eldest seven years old and the youngest in arms. Her time is well occupied in her domestic duties.

ADMIT OVERCHARGE.

But Mrs. Waldman called on Mr. Wrightington, who declared he expressed great surprise at the size of her bill and said of course it was too much.

Mrs. Waldman's neighbors have taken up the fight, and it was stated today that a petition, signed by hundreds of Roxbury residents, was in process of preparation and soon would be submitted. Other cities, it is understood, will demand official investigation of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company's charges.

Mrs. Nellie Ahearn, who lives at No. 74 Maywood street, also has joined forces with Mrs. Waldman in her fight for honest gas bills. In a letter to the Editor of the Boston American, Mrs. Ahearn says:

"Having read of the outrageous overcharging of gas of Mrs. Bessie Waldman, No. 79 Maywood street, Roxbury, and being a friend and also neighbor, I though I would bring to your notice also the terrible overcharge on my bills of the past few months.

"I have made several complaints to the Gas Company without satisfaction, and only received reply that it was up to previous months charge (the meter was making up, it seems, for last bill).

"Indeed it is very gratifying to get such loyal support from the Boston American, which has taken up this Wrightington forthwith. He assured her, she says, that the company would make a full and forceful investigation question so willingly in trying to help the people get their rights."

The "three last bills" unpaid, mentioned by Mrs. Ahearn in her letter to the American were $5.70 on December 12, $17.80 on January 18 and $31.70 on February 11.

If Gas Company Is Overcharging, Write to the American

So many glaring inconsistencies in the prices charged for gas in Greater Boston have come to the notice of the American, that this newspaper invites its readers to write to this office if they believe they have been subjected to unjust charges by local gas companies.

These letters should not be merely complaints. They should be accompanied by monthly statements from the company to back up the writers' charges.

NEW FLIVVER TO BE POOR MAN'S TROLLEY

Kansas City, March 11.—The new Ford flivver which Henry Ford and his son, Edsel, plan to sell from $250 to $350 is going to rival the street car, according to Edsel Ford, who outlined the projected plans of the new company today.

"This company will be owned entirely within our family," said Edsel Ford, "and thus can be directed without outside interference. We expected to start work on our plants in the early part of next year. We are hunting water power, and so far have only two definite locations—Hamilton, O., and Troy, N. Y. It will probably be a year before we launch the new company.

"Our present car is used largely for commercial purposes, with pleasure use as a side issue. The new car will reach another field, going to the people who have no urgent need for a motor car except to go to and from work or for infrequent pleasure trips. We expect to make it a competitor of the street car rather than of the Ford.

"Lightness, yet increased strength, is one of the features, and we have some new inventions which will reduce the cost."

BOYS IN WAGON CAUGHT WITH LOOT

Plead Guilty to Robbing Freight Car of Cigars and Stockings

Two boys acting suspiciously in the Mystic River section of Charlestown were arrested early today by Police Officer McGrath of Division 15. McGrath saw the two driving a light express wagon which contained two wooden cases. He held up the young men and drove them to the police station, where it developed that the two were John F. Gaerin, seventeen, of Medford street, Charlestown, and Edward F. Walsh, also seventeen, of Polk street, Charlestown.

The cases were found to contain $200 worth of cigars and $90 worth of women's hosiery. Both cases had been stolen from a freight car at Mystic freight yards, near the south draw of Chelsea bridge.

The boys confessed to the theft, and said they had stolen a tender tied up at the shore at Mahoney's wharf, and rowed down the river to the Mystic freight yards, where they broke into a freight car, secured the two cases, carried them to the tender, rowed down the river to the Mystic Place Gardens, where they left the cases in the tender and proceeded to the stable of Frank Skaill, on Sheridan street, Charlestown.

Here they broke into the stable, took a horse and wagon, drove to the gardens, loaded on the two cases and started to drive them to a temporary place of hiding when apprehended by Officer McGrath.

The boys also admitted that they were concerned in two other cases of larceny which had preceded this one. They pleaded guilty in the Charlestown Police Court today, and the case was put off until Friday.

NEWTON BUDGET NEARLY TWO MILLIONS

City Asks for Increases in Streets, Schools, Playgrounds and Other Items

Newton's budget for 1919, asked for by Mayor Edwin O. Childs, is $1,904,037.28, it was announced today. The money actually spent in 1918 was $1,681,712.04.

The increases asked for will come chiefly in the following departments: Police, $5,000; fire and wire, $11,000; streets, $67,000, out of which $30,000 would be used for resurfacing; forestry, $7,000; schools, $43,000; playgrounds, $12,000.

Some friction is expected on the schoolhouse improvements appropriations.

Improvements required by the State police, chiefly relative to fire escapes, would require an expenditure of $56,000. Fifty thousand dollars have already been spent on recommendations of the Fire Hazard Commission, resulting in making the buildings thoroughly fireproof. In the opinion of school and city authorities, further expenditure along this line is unnecessary.

Mayor Peters's "Greater Boston" proposition will cost the city $5,000 for legislative work, according to Mayor Childs' budget.

As an innovation, appropriations for city departments are asked for this year in lump sums, to be expended according to decision of department heads. The previous custom was to give a detailed budget for each department.

MONTREAL WELCOMES FAMOUS 42D KILTIES

Montreal, March 11.—A civic holiday was declared here today and all work abandoned in celebration of the return of Montreal's famous regiment, the 42d Highlanders. The Highlanders carried their old trench helmets, many of which bore dents of bullets. Over two hundred Americans are members of this celebrated unit.

He was a prisoner in the wreckage for more than an hour, until the crew of a relief car released him. The accident happened on Salem street, Malden, near the Saugus line, and at a sharp turn in the road.

GEN. KENLY DEMOTED TO RETURN TO ARTILLERY

Washington, March 11.—Major-General William L. Kenly today was returned to the rank of colonel and relieved of duty as director of military aeronautics, to be succeeded by Brigadier-General William Mitchell, who was chief of the air service with the American expeditionary forces. WAGE SCALE NOT TO BE CHANGED BY U. S. BOARD

Washington, March 11.—The first consideration of the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce, Secretary Redfield said, would be to cut off excessive profits in industry. He denied there was any intention to disturb the wage level at present session of her mental faculties.

Eighteen Boston nurses who have been serving overseas with the Massachusetts General and City Hospital units, and who constitute the vanguard of the returning army of medical and Red Cross workers, arrived in the South Station early today.

Notwithstanding the early hour at which their train arrived from New York the nurses were given a welcome quite as enthusiastic as that awarded the soldiers discharged from the troop transports at this port.

Mrs. A. E. Blackman and Mrs. Henry G. Chase were in charge of the Red Cross workers who went to the station, and a large crowd of relatives and friends of the young women were gathered about the gates of the trainshed. Coffee and doughnuts were served the nurses before they started for their homes to await final demobilization.

The young women have been serving with Base Hospital Units 6 and 7, and those from the Massachusetts General were wearing the three gold stripes denoting more than eighteen months of foreign service. As a matter of fact this unit served twenty months in the war zone, and was a tower of strength to the allied medical force during some of the worst of the fighting.

The nurses from Massachusetts General who arrived back today were Catherine Carlton, Roselle Travers, Mary Driscoll, Mary A. Diamond, Margaret Reilly and the Misses Rodgers, McLeod, Riley and Lena De Rusha.

Those who served with the City Hospital unit, which saw six months of foreign service abroad, were Agnes Smith, Elizabeth Rotherford, Mary Ferguson, Margaret Crookstead, Grace Bartlett, Edith Getz, Helen K. Chadwick, Ellen C. Daley, Mary Cronin, Mary Dwyer and Mary A. Kenney.

Miss Margaret Reilly of the Massachusetts General Unit said, in thanking the committee which served coffee and doughnuts in the South Station that the sight of real American doughnuts was just as welcome to the nurses as to the soldiers who have entered this port, as the medical and nursing forces had little time to eat during the men in the trenches during the hottest of the fighting.

Conditions around Bordeaux when she and her associates were serving there she described as particularly hard. Miss Reilly also worked for the Red Cross in Paris for four months.

The remainder of the Boston City Hospital Unit will reach New York aboard the Siboney March 30, Acting Superintendent Dr. Edmund Wilson has been informed. Lieutenant-Colonel John J. Dowling, commanding base hospital 7, indicates in a cable to Dr. Wilson that the overseas medical and Red Cross forces may be expected back in a steady stream from now on.

BOY BANDITS GET LONG TERMS IN PRISON

Declaring that the wave of violence in Massachusetts is due to mistaken court leniency, Judge Dubuque, in Superior Criminal Court today, sentenced Joseph F. Mulgeary, nineteen, and Francis McGovern, eighteen, to State prison for from ten to twelve years, after they pleaded guilty of assault with intent to rob.

"If boys start out at the top-notch of crime they must expect top-notch sentences, at least in this court," Judge Dubuque stated in passing sentence. "Mexican methods are being transplanted to Eastern cities, and it is time they were stamped out, without regard to sentimentality. The law-abiding have rights as well as youthful highwaymen."

Mulgeary lived in Boston, and McGovern's home was in Somerville. They pleaded guilty to assaulting Edward Kassagian, proprietor of a small store at No. 190 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, on the night of February 23. The assault followed the refusal of the store proprietor to tell where his cash was hidden, and during the fight one of the two boys discharged a revolver.

Judge Dubuque said: "It is part of the psychology of crime that violence always increases during war times. The carrying of firearms and the callousness induced by wholesale destruction is bound to have a reaction. Evil motion pictures and trashy novels with their tales of desperadoes also play their share in the manufacture of youthful criminals.

"But the greatest incentive to this kind of crime is the belief that the youthful perpetrators of dastardly entitles them to sympathy and leniency," continued the judge. "This belief will lead to anarchy. We see such reasoning at its best in Russia.

"If these crime waves are allowed to recede without the drastic punishment that criminals who are caught, we will revert to barbarism, and have here again primeval chaos.

"These cases are not cases for examply, nor cases for the reformatory, but for State prison."

Recipients of "Slush Fund" Included Senators, Representatives and Others

The names of State Senators, Representatives, a judge, a mayor of a city and members of the Constitutional Convention who received money from the $52,000 "slush fund" raised in an attempt to defeat the Initiative and Referendum at the last election were disclosed to the legislative Committee on Judiciary today by Representative John J. Carey of Dorchester.

Among the prominent politicians charged by Carey as having accepted money for their services in opposing the Initiative and Referendum were these:

SENATORS.

Kenneth L. Nash of Weymouth —$2,048.

Joseph Knox of Somerville—$1,524.57.

James E. MacPherson of Framingham—$1,828.

Charles L. Gifford of Barnstable—$600.

REPRESENTATIVES.

Charles L. Underhill of Somerville—$600.

J. Weston Allen of Newton—$500.

Jacob Bitzer of Arlington—809.

Charles F. Rowley of Brookline —$1,428.

Francis M. Hills of Saugus—$817.28.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Charles L. Underhill of Somerville, $600.

John J. Douglas of East Boston, $138.

Rufus H. Tilton of Springfield, $720.

Henry Lummus of Lynn, $1,200.

Carey said that Mayor Weeks of Everett received $1,100 "for two meetings within ten days of each other."

"Most of the money was paid to them for 'services,' 'traveling expenses,' 'clerical hire' and 'meetings,' according to the returns filed with the Secretary of State by the Association for Representative Government, the organization of reactionaries and corporation interests which raised the $52,000 fund to kill the I. and R.," said Carey.

"REPRESENTATIVE" LEMUS GOT $1,200.

Knox and Gifford are still members of the Senate. Underhill is still a member of the House and of the convention, which has not finally adjourned. Most of the others retired last year, although Carey said "they were still members of the Legislature in the Constitutional Convention and were in the employ of the people when they were paid for their 'services.'" Rowley, a House member and Allen was a candidate for Attorney-General.

Lummus is a judge of the court. He was paid $1,200 for 'services as an editor' in compiling a booklet against the Initiative and Referendum.

"MacPherson's father, who is owner of the Lakeview Press, received $15,600 for printing. A brother of Nash's received $396 for 'services.'

Carey read the figures while advocating a bill to make it unlawful for a member of the Legislature or State official or employe to favor or oppose for him any measure submitted to the people.

Whitfield Tuck of Winchester said that in his opinion "the corridor runners at the State House are honorable when compared to members of the Legislature and public officials who take money for these purposes."

TO THE LOBBY EVIL.

Former Senator Robert M. Washburn of Worcester, before the same committee, advocated a bill to prohibit lobbyists and legislative agents from making political contributions to candidates and political committees.

"This practice was largely responsible for the abuses which caused the defeat of the Initiative and Referendum," said Mr. Washburn. "It would be quite safe to leave this bill to the members of the Republican State Committee from appearing at the State House as legislative agents, but the members "beat it, by appearing as legislatives counsel."

"I remember the incident you refer to," said Mr. Washburn. "It resulted in the withdrawal of Charles F. Choate and J. Otis Wardwell from the committee."

WAR BRIDE ARRIVES IN SALEM AFTER DELAYS

Mrs. Lucy May Bernson, wife of Chief Quartermaster Alvin E. Bernson, United States Navy, No. 7 Maple avenue, Salem, one of the war brides who arrived last Saturday on the transport Leonardo, reached Salem today. When she arrived in New York she wired that she would arrive at the South Station on Sunday morning. When she failed to arrive as scheduled Mrs. Charlotte Bernson, her mother-in-law, became alarmed and wired New York to inquire of the girl's whereabouts, but could get no clew. A wired telegram from New York headquarters of the Red Cross said the bride had been detained by the revenue office until her baggage was inspected. Her husband is now in Cuban waters with the fleet.

Boston Dealers Not Eager for Two Months' Permit to Sell Liquor

Several hundred liquor licenses are going begging in Boston up to date. Boston is allowed 941 licenses. But only 241 applications for licenses or renewals have been received from hotels, saloons, liquor stores and druggists so far this spring by the licensing board for the city of Boston. In normal years the number of license applications at this time usually runs to 700. But to date there are 700 licenses not applied for, and this is not a normal year.

The falling off of Boston applications puts the number up of eight dry State towns to the "wet" column, after periods of dryness ranging from six to twenty-nine years, were features of the liquor situation in the State today.

By special legislation monthly licenses for May and June will be allowed. Then the "bone dry" regime, under the amendment to the Constitution, will come in.

LICENSEES IN NO HURRY.

But Boston licensees seem in no hurry to take advantage of the two months' opportunity.

Scarcity of ale and the limited supply of beer are held partly responsible. Many saloons are unable to supply ale to their customers. Some breweries will be able to keep their trade supplied with beer up to May. But many saloons are expected to run out of beer by April.

The remarkable "comeback" of Old John Barleycorn in eight Bay State towns was the feature of the annual town meetings in eleven municipalities. Three towns remained dry.

The most notable captures by the Barleycorn forces, from the standpoint of continued dryness, were Weymouth and Hingham. These South Shore towns had been dry for twenty-nine and twenty-six years, respectively.

The vote this year and last year in these eleven towns showed interesting figures. Last year Hingham cast only 51 "yes" ballots. But this year it suddenly produced 311 "yes" ballots. The no-license vote of 224 last year fell to 202 and was drowned in the "wet" wave.

O'Connell: "Mr. Tague did not have to drink nine glasses of water this morning, the way you did."

Lomasney: "The reason I drink so much water is because I have a throat trouble. I'll talk you out of court any day, Mr. O'Connell."

Lomasney's continued cross-examination by O'Connell was hardly under way before Mr. Lomasney had flatly refused to produce the membership list of the Hendricks Club.

This is the famous political organization of old Ward 5 (now Ward 8), of which the witness is treasurer. His brother, Schoolhouse Commissioner Joseph P. Lomasney, is president.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

Abraham Berman, one of the notaries before whom evidence is being taken for later submission to a congressional committee, ruled that Lomasney should get the membership list.

John P. Feeney, counsel for the Fitzgerald interests, said that the time had passed for the "damn well to" attitude of witnesses and papers.

Lomasney raised a laugh by saying: "I am between two fires here—God and the devil."

Lomasney said he was not afraid to produce the list, not afraid of O'Connell or anybody else.

Lomasney declared he would never go to Berman for any law decision.

The hearing room was jammed with politicians today, just as it was when Lomasney began his testimony yesterday.

The treasurer of the Hendricks Club came in, removed overcoat, hat and suit coat—revealing again his gray knitted coat-sweater—and took the stand. He drank a glass of water, produced papers and pencil and was immediately quizzed by O'Connell.

Q.—Have you the list of members of the Hendricks Club? A.—No.

Q.—Weren't you summoned to produce the membership books of the club? A.—I got a subpoena when I came in the door.

Q.—Will you go out and get the list? A.—No.

APPEALS TO BERMAN.

Mr. O'Connell appealed to Notary Berman, saying:

"A subpoena was served by you as marshal on this witness [Lomasney]. I want this hearing adjourned so he can get the list of members of the Hendricks Club. It is necessary for me to prove how the voters of Ward Eight were colonized. I am entitled to the fullest information. I appeal to you to suspend the hearing for twenty minutes to permit Lomasney to go to the club and bring back the membership list."

Mr. Feeney: "The forty days allowed by Congress to take depositions and summon witnesses on the part of Mr. Tague have expired. I am now conducting this hearing in the interests of Mr. Fitzgerald. Until my forty days are up, Mr. O'Connell, you have no legal power to summon anybody."

Notary Berman held that Lomasney should get the club membership list. Mr. O'Connell said:

"It is very evident from the snarling attitude of defiance assumed by Mr. Feeney that Mr. Tague has hit the vital spot of Mr. Feeney's attempt to conceal the real trickery in Ward 5."

Mr. O'Connell turned to Lomasney:

Q.—Are you afraid to produce that list of members? A.—I'm afraid of nothing, Mr. O'Connell; you or anybody else. (Laughter.)

Q.—Why don't you obey this legal summons and get the list? A.—I am between two fires here—God and the devil (laughter).

Q.—Why don't you give weight to Notary Berman? A.—I know him and I give such weight to his ruling as his standing deserves.

Q.—That slur was uncalled for. Why don't you obey Mr. Berman's ruling? A.—I know him and I'll never go to him for any decision in law in spite of his having passed the bar examination.

Q.—Why do you besmirch Mr. Berman's reputation? A.—Because I know him. You set him up as a great authority on law. Why don't you keep him down here where he belongs (pointing to the floor).

Q.—Do you want to evade the law? A.—I never evade the law. I obey it.

At this point opposing counsel wrangled and shot derogatory remarks at each other, addressing himself to Notary Mancovitz, who ordered certain evidence stricken out. Attorney O'Connell said:

"You interfere with this record by striking anything out, Mr. Mancovitz, and the whole thing will be declared immaterial by Congress."

Mr. Feeney: Not so fast, Mr. O'Connell, I venture to say that what you are trying to say will be the only stuff stricken out as immaterial.

Mr. O'Connell then resumed his cross-examination of Mr. Lomasney.

Q.—Now to get back to this matter of colonization. Did you know Charles F. Gallagher? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did he vote from? A.—The Hotel Haymarket, I believe.

Q.—Do you know Thomas H. Keenan? A.—I have known him ever since he was born. I was in the house when he was born, or a few days later.

Q.—Do you know where he lives? A.—No; he is a single man and I don't keep track of him.

BAD A LICENSE.

Q.—Were you ever at the Lancaster Club? A.—Once or twice, maybe.

Q.—It is a liquor club, isn't it? A.—I don't drink rum, so I don't know what they do there, but they have a license, I believe.

Other questions brought forth hilarious laughter from the spectators. In sheer desperation at the opposition, O'Connell shouted:

"I am here to prove that colonization of voters took place in Lomasney's ward, and all I want is a square deal and fair play!"

Q.—Why do you call them mattress voters? A.—Because that is the language of the ward for a certain type of voter.

Q.—I ask you for a definition of mattress voter. A.—A mattress voter is a man who has a respectable wife and family in one part of the city and who, without having any family differences which would cause him to stay away from home, goes to another man's house and stays and registers from that address. To illustrate: You are a mattress voter and Paddy Hogan is a mattress voter and there are others I can name, and, furthermore, if there ever was an investigation of the navy yard while Tague was in Congress during the war some of the men in the ropewalk under Superintendent Churchill's wife are still running to the wilds of Canada.

There was applause at this point.

Feeney—That will hold you for a while, Mr. O'Connell.

O'Connell—You stop me from pressing my questions against Lomasney when I have him on dangerous ground.

(To Lomasney—You are mistaken, Mr. O'Connell. You never had me on dangerous ground in your life.

Q.—Why do you indulge in personalities about me, Mr. Lomasney? A.—Because you are a mattress voter, and voted in Dorchester while you resided for three years in Brookline."

Q.—Why show up my affairs? I'm not on trial here? A.—Because you called Irish people slaves. You persisted in abusing Ward Five residents and holding them up to ridicule when, after investigating your own personal record, lo and behold, I find you are a practised and expert mattress voter yourself.

Q.—Please leave me out of this altogether. A.—I will not call you a mattress voter again if you promise not to call my friends slaves.

Q.—But I still insist that you are their master, and that your Ward 5 henchmen are your slaves. They do your very will. You control them absolutely. A.—Why are no more slaves than the Red Devils of Democracy in your own ward in Dorchester. And they elected you to Congress from obscurity by three or four votes. Didn't they? I'm not so sure that your own election was entirely legal.

Q.—Have you a relative named Thomas F. Lomasney? A.—Yes—a cousin.

Q.—Thomas F. Lomasney is a thrifty man, is he not? A.—A pretty wise guy—yes.

Q.—Runs in the family, doesn't it? A.—Oh, some of us have our failures.

Q.—He votes from No. 1 Bowdoin street, doesn't he? A.—He registered from that address, I believe.

Q.—But he doesn't live there, does he?

A.—No sir, not now.

Q.—Would you like to invite him to your neighborhood, would he?

A.—Well, I don't know. Some pretty fine people live on Bowdoin street.

O'Connell then asked Mr. Lomasney concerning a dozen so called mattress voters, the legality of whose votes is under question by the Tague supporters.

"PLANT," SAYS MARTIN.

Attorney O'Connell then read testimony purportingto have been taken from a man named Kinkelstein, who lived in Roxbury and voted from a West End address.

Q.—What do you say to that, Mr. Lomasney. A.—Mr. O'Connell, that's a plant. It's some of your own work, I'll bet. You let me cross-examine him and I'll prove to you that he's lying. He's a liar; he's a knave and I'll make him admit it. He didn't mention a name or describe one of the men whom he said put him there; it's a plain, cheap cold plant!

Q.—Why get so excited, Mr. Lomasney? Did I get under your skin that time? A.—You haven't got a thing on me, Mr. O'Connell.

Q.—Have you got over your excitement yet? A.—I'm never excited. My old bean is pretty cool; I'm getting ahead of you all right.

Q.—Do you know John F. Corcoran? A.—All my life.

Q.—Lives at No. 14 Alban street, Charlestown, doesn't he? A.—I don't know. He's a single man.

Q.—Will you bring Corcoran here and let me cross-examine him? A.—I will if you'll bring Finkelstein here and let me cross-examine him?

A.—Will you bring Corcoran here? A.—I'll show the planting you've done in your own ward. (Laughter.) I'll prove that this Finkelstein stuff was the result of a plant by men like yourself who are experienced in this sort of thing.

Q.—Excited again, are you? A.—Not on your life, but I've got you all right just where I want you.

ALL GOOD FELLOWS.

Q.—You know you have a great many liquor dealers voting in Ward 5? A.—We've more liquor dealers in Ward 5 than any other ward in the city!

Q.—And more liquor dealers vote there than in any other ward, don't they? A.—Maybe—I suppose so.

Q.—Isn't it necessary to be a resident of Ward 5 to vote there? A.—It's very desirable.

Q.—Don't you have to live in Ward 5 to be a member of the Hendricks Club? A.—We investigate all applicants. I mean that they shall be residents of the ward if possible.

U. S. Prosecutor to Get Lomasney's Charge

United States Marshal John J. Mitchell's attention was called today to the charge made by Martin Lomasney that a "John W. Ryan used a United States marchal's badge in doing Tague's dirty work, acting as a stool pigeon under the guise of a federal investigator."

Marshal Mitchell said:

"There is no man of that name connected with this office, and consequently nobody of that name had any authority to use our badge."

Asked if any prosecution was likely to result from this charge, Marshal Mitchell said: "Mr. Lomasney's testimony will be placed before the United States District-Attorney when the testimony officially reaches this office."

COUNCIL JOINS IN ELECTRIC LIGHT WAR

Votes to Pass Mayor's Order for $10,000 Inquiry; Indorses American Campaign

The City Council has indorsed the Boston American's fight for cheaper electric light rates in the city.

Members of the council voted at their executive session to pass the Mayor's recent order, calling for the expenditure of $10,000 by the city, as its share in the campaign being waged by Grenville S. MacFarland and the American against the Edison Electric Illuminating Company in an attempt to secure cheaper electric light rates.

The Council passed the order, following the receipt of a decision made by Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside relative to the legality of such an appropriation. Mr. Whiteside based his decision on Chapter 23 of the General Acts of 1916.

Councillors Henry F. Hagan and James A. Watson were the only two members of the Council who did not vote for the appropriation, but they explained that it was on the grounds that a dangerous precedent would be established. Councillor Walter L. Collins moved that the order be passed and Councillor Francis J. W. Ford seconded the motion.

The decision upon which the Councillors determined their vote is as follows:

"In accordance with the request of the City Council made to me on Monday, March 3, 1919, that I give you an opinion relative to the legality of the proposed appropriation of the sum of $10,000 to be used in connection with petitions now pending before the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners for reduction in the price of electricity sold by and delivered by the Edison Company, I beg to submit the following:

"Chapter 23 of the General Acts of 1916, specifically permits cities and towns to make appropriations for just such purposes.

"Even if that statute were not in effect, there could be no question that the city of Boston could legally make an appropriation for the expenses of a proceeding aimed to secure reduction of rates for light furnished to the city of Boston instituted by the city itself. As the result of such a proceeding, if conducted with proper industry and intelligence, must be the same whether it is instituted by the city or by some other person, I can see no reason why the city could not join with others who have brought such a proceeding and contribute to the proper expenses thereof.

"At least one of your honorable body desired to know whether if the city joined in the proceedings now brought and appropriated money towards the expenses, it might establish a precedent which might later be embarrassing. I cannot see how it would establish any precedent, or how, if it did, it need be embarrassing.

"Each such case must be considered on its merits. In this particular instance, if it is advisable for the city of Boston to join in the proceedings brought, and to contribute to the expense thereof, I can see no reason why it should not do so, and simply because it is considered advisable in this instance, it does not follow that at some future time, in some more or less similar case, such participation in this regard will give anyone the right to argue in the future that the city ought to participate in some other case.

"It is impossible to tell in advance just how active a participation the city ought to take in the present proceedings, or just what bills it ought to pay. A great deal is going to depend on how the proceeding is conducted.

"It is a very difficult piece of work and is going to require a tremendous amount of industry, research and ability, if it is to be handled properly. I very much hesitate to commit the law department to active conduct of the case, as I know it would take practically the entire time of one of the most competent people in the law department and a great deal of time on the part of others. If Mr. MacFarland and his associate counsel show themselves competent to handle the matter properly and intelligently, I think it would be a real saving to the city to let them handle it.

"If the appropriation is made, my plan would be to have one of the assistants in the law department follow the case closely, keep me informed of how the proceedings develop, and if we are satisfied that Mr. MacFarland and his associates are doing what they ought to do and are showing the requisite degree of industry, ability and propriety, to countersign vouchers for such expenses as expert fees, stenographic bills, etc. (but not counsel fees), which I am satisfied are proper and reasonable under the circumstances. I should also, of course, have the city of Boston intervene in the proceedings so that it will be an actual party thereto.

"If, as a matter develops, I am not satisfied that the case is being properly conducted, I shall so notify Mr. MacFarland and advise the Mayor that the city should withdraw and decline to countersign bills.

"The appropriation, in my judgment, ought to cover not only such as that is all Mr. MacFarland has asked for. It should be granted without any idea that a further appropriation will be asked for the purpose, and I can see no reason why it should not be spent equally as well for expenses already incurred as for those which are to be incurred. If, however, the City Council desires to limit the use of the appropriation to bills which have not already been incurred, I can see no objection to that.

SCHOOL ESSAYS TO AID HEALTH CAMPAIGN

More Than $25,000 Realized Today in Drive for Fund; "Movies" Help Out

Brief essays from public school children on the higher grades are being sought to assist in making successful the $270,000 Health Campaign for the Boston Dispensary, Baby Hygiene Association and District Nursing Association. Pupils may obtain information necessary for their essays at campaign headquarters, No. 95 Milk street, or from district chairmen.

The opening day realized more than $25,000 for the fund, and every mail today brought thousands of dollars more.

M. F. Murphy, driving his nurse-laden tally-ho through the busy streets, attracted much attention favorable to the campaign, while a two-horse hose wagon, driven by a fireman and also carrying a cargo of nurses, took a different route.

Motion picture shows in Greater Boston are projecting appeals all this week, which so far have brought a most gratifying response.

Armour and Company NOT in the Retail Grocery Business

CERTAIN jobbing salesmen are circulating reports to the effect that Armour and Company control certain retail grocery stores or are planning to enter into the retail grocery business.

These reports are utterly and absolutely false. We desire to brand them as such once and for all. Armour and Company do not control any retail grocery stores wholly or in part. Neither have we any affiliation or connection in any way whatsoever with any owners of any retail grocery stores. Armour and Company have no intention of engaging in the retail grocery business.

Armour and Company distribute and sell a very limited number of food lines not directly produced from livestock. This is only the result of natural evolution. Our system of distribution and marketing must be maintained with the greatest possible efficiency. It is necessary, for reasons of economy, that it handle as great a volume at all seasons as possible.

This same distributive system enables us to carry staple foods to the people of this country with greater efficiency and at a cost that is low commensurate with the service. If our facilities are such that we have been able to serve the public more economically and efficiently than our competitors, then it is the retailer and consumer who benefit.

Armour and Company are more than packers. They are food purveyors. But, our participation in grocery lines represents only 4.6 per cent of our total business. Yet, wholesale grocery houses whose representatives spread these false reports are, themselves, engaged in numerous side-lines far removed from edible products. A recent bill of goods which we purchased from a wholesale grocer, contained more than forty items, not one of which could be used for food—except by an ostrich.

Reports of our engaging, or intending to engage, in the retail grocery business are, without exception, untrue. In the words of Mr. J. Ogden Armour, "We have no intention of adding the woes of retailing to the burdens of manufacturing and distributing."

Armour and Company will continue to regard all retailers as our co-workers. By means of our refrigerator cars and our branch houses it will be our effort to continue to provide them with the finest foods of all kinds that we can select and prepare—under the quality mark of the OVAL LABEL.

DILLBOY, DYING HERO OF 26TH, SILENCED ENEMY GUN

A regiment of the Yankee Division —the 104th Infantry, composed of Massachusetts men, was the first in the history of the United States army to have its colors decorated by a foreign government, when the French honred its flag.

LANDED IN SEPTEMBER.

The 26th Division landed at St. Nazaire, the first unit disembarking September 21, 1917. It entered the line in the Toulon sector on February 6, 1918.

It served seven solid months in the trenches, or an aggregate of 210 days.

"The 26th American Division is a fighting division which has proven its qualities in battle on various parts of the front."

Incidentally the best judges of a division are enemy commanders. In divers ways and on divers occasions the Germans showed a marked respect for the aggressiveness of the men from home.

The first enlisted man in the American land forces awarded a medal of honor was First Class Private George Dilboy, a Boston lad, son of Antone Dilboy of the Massachusetts General Hospital and a member of H Company of the 103d Infantry of the Yankee Division.

Dilboy, like Private Perkins, mentioned in the opening chapter of this history, died of wounds after performing an act equally valorous to that of the hero from South Boston.

SENT TO FATHER.

The citation that went with the medal to his father stated that young Dilboy had exhibited "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty" in a fight near Hotleau, July 18, 1918. The citation adds:

"After his platoon had gained its objective along a railroad embankment, Private Dilboy, accompanying his platoon leader to reconnoiter the ground beyond, was suddenly fired upon by an enemy machine gun from one hundred yards. From a standing position on the railroad track, fully exposed to view, Dilboy opened fire at once, but failing to silence the gun, rushed forward with his bayonet fixed through a wheat field toward the gun emplacement, falling within twenty five yards of the gun, his right leg nearly severed above the knee and with several bullet wounds in his body. With undaunted courage he continued to fire into the emplacement from a prone position, killing two of the enemy and dispersing the rest of the crew."

Think of having the nerve so accurately to aim that he killed two Huns and silenced the machine gun, with his body riddled and bleeding and a leg hanging by a shred. That is American sand for you. Do you wonder, then, that we who saw such patriots lying maimed and unconscious on ground or litters stained by the blood of many before them, or lowered into hurriedly dug graves, are eager to drag their praise?

GREATEST FIGURE OF WAR.

His pluck and his patience and his dash (Marshal Foch laid stress on the latter quality when our American correspondents interviewed him in his private train at Treves) was a source of constant surprise to the military leaders of the allied forces.

Without desiring to draw offensive parallels, or to detract by so much as a hair's breadth from the glorious record made by our brothers in arms, it might be excusable here to state that the position of the doughboy was different sentimentally, psychologically and geographically than the privates in the other allied armies.

The pollu, than whom no braver or craffier soldier lives, was fighting to save the women and the children and the homes in his land. Belgium was overrun, and England and Italy were menaced, but the American doughboy came from 3,000 to 4,000 miles to battle for a principle in a foreign land. His women and children and homes were in no immediate peril. He could not hurry home to see his relatives and friends like the French and the English soldiers, even if a furlough was available, which was seldom, if ever. The Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians and the other colonials in the British and the French armies were similarly handicapped.

MAN DIED AS BRAVELY.

You thought of these and other things when soldiers like Perkins and Dilboy fell. Often your intimate friends were among them. Frequently as I passed a body in woods, or field or by the road, or doubled up in a trench or "fox hole," I thought of the mother. I wondered who she was and where she lived and if she was thinking of her son at that moment.

I wondered how she would feel if she stood beside me and viewed the broken body of her dear one in all that tumult and desolation. I thought of the shock that the telegram from the War Department would occasion, and, of the name in the list of the home newspaper.

Right here permit me to say that many a poor lad out there died as gallantly as did those who received special honors and mention and who would have had his name inscribed on the honor roll of the company. A battle had not obliterated the details of his action and sacrifice. Citations and medals do not find all the heroes. Let this, if it may, be a source of comfort to those whose soldier relative died in obscurity.

NEVER COMPLAINED.

Our fellows always looked so pathetically far away from all the ties that they held dear, so woefully isolated when struck down. Your heart went out to them—the dead and the wounded. The latter were so patient and stoical. That was the thing that impressed the doctors and nurses. They agreed that the Doughboy was even gamer than they had expected.

You saw sick and wounded in hospitals who knew they must die and who were in pain, but they never whimpered. I saw a chap with the loss of his jaw shot away by a shell fragment and his tongue was hanging and bleeding. He made signs to the attending surgeon that he "would smile if he had enough mouth left." The doctors were planning to graft the bone of his arm and make a new jaw.

Between attacks you made the acquaintance of many who looked for you to hear the daily news. They used to remark now and then that the hardest thing of all was to say good-bye without seeing for a last time those at home. I recall a lieutenant, a handsome chap, with a fine nose and forehead and sad brown eyes, whom I first met back at Camp Devens. He got it near me as I passed the long row of beds in an evacuation hospital one afternoon. He had been gassed and the poison had got into his blood and developed fatal complications.

I chatted at his bedside whenever I passed that way and I saw him fail, and the last day we talked he told me that he would give worlds to kiss and embrace his mother and would die happier with her blessing. I saw him buried without that sacred privilege.

TRAGEDIES BEHIND LINES.

Fighting and facing bullets and bursting shells and vapor clouds were not the only hardships of the war. The tragedy behind the scenes—the personal element, was one of the saddest features.

That was why it was so gratifying to stuff your pockets with cigarettes and matches and unexpectedly appease the everlasting craving of a smoke as they were headed for the advanced dressing stations.

"Say, Doc, I know I'm done for. Nobody has to tell me. Do you think I made good. I did my best, Doc."

The surgeon said:

"The spirit of that kid got me. The only thing that bothered him was whether he had done as well as was expected. He had left high school to do his bit. We buried him that afternoon near the old church with a shell-hole in its spire."

I had seen that American cemetery grow in a span of days from a dozen to several hundred graves.

The knights of old had nothing on the doughboy. He was continually surprising cunning officers and bunkies on the field of battle and often surprising himself. Youngsters who had never had a chance to test what was in them developed into regimental heroes over night.

I saw them go "over the top," a term used after the fighting became open, as it was during the more stereotyped trench warfare—untried material, eyes straight ahead, chins up, jaws set, every line in face and frame showing by the tenseness that they appreciated the full danger, but not a quitter among them—the sons of Jews and the sons of Christians, the sons of Greeks, Armenians, Poles, Swedes, Italians, Scotch, Irish, English, American, yes, and the sons of Germans—a crushing dynamo of sinew and courage, one of the greatest army of crusaders in the world's history. In justice to the lads of German strain, let it be said that they fought as valiantly against the common foe as any others.

Such was the human timber of the Yankee Division and every other division in the American overseas army.

"CALLUS CORNS" LIFT RIGHT OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but its taste thereafter all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap to make, but it really has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full direction and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

AMERICAN NEWSIES SEE HUMANITY FILM TONIGHT

Through the generosity of the Gordon-Mayer Film Corporation, more than 1,000 Boston American newsboys will attend the performance of "The Heart of Humanity," the spectacular love film at the Tremont Temple. Accompanied by Ives Hand, comprising more than two-score trained musicians, the boys will leave the home office of the Boston American on Summer street at 7 o'clock tonight and march in a body to the Temple.

The boys will occupy portions of the first and second balconies, which have been especially reserved for them. This is not the first time that the Gordon-Mayer Film interests have exhibited such generosity for the newsboys. On several previous occasions the boys have witnessed, as guests of this progressive aggregation of film men, several notable productions, which were shown to the public for the first time in New England under their supervision.

"The Heart of Humanity" is a motion picture history of woman's part in the great war, depicted in story form and built around the romance of a little Canadian girl, who gave her husband to fight against Prussian autocracy and then went to France herself to care for the wounded and orphaned and homeless victims of German brutality.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—The bills at Loew's Columbia with their daily complete change form an appealing policy to this theatre's large list of patrons. Each day's bill is generous in offering, there being two complete photoplays, news pictures and comedies, making in all a three-hour show.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM—Pun was the keynote of the burlesque show presented yesterday at the Howard Athenaeum by the Paris By Night Company. It served to introduce a number of clever funmakers and dashing dancing girls.

FINAL WARNING BY ROPER TO TAX DODGERS

By DANIEL C. ROPER,
U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

(Written for Universal Service.)

Washington, March 11.—Under the revenue act of 1918, $6,000,000,000 is to be collected from the people of the United States during the calendar year of 1919. If this tax was distributed evenly, according to population, nearly $60 would have to be assessed against every man, woman and child in the country.

We now face the opportunity to show the world that we are ready to pay for the great victory our sons have won on the fields of France. We must show our patriotism within the coming five days, for on March 15 the government asks that all persons whose incomes are such that they come within the law must make their returns. Under the graduated plan of paying the taxes, fully one-sixth will be paid on March 15, the date of the return. Saturday will see paid in cash into the United States treasury at least $1,000,000,000.

If a one-fourth payment is made next Saturday all persons who have to make out their personal or corporation taxes are given until May 1 to make final return.

I have the utmost confidence in the right thinking and right doing of the American people, and I believe that the income taxes will be paid this year cheerfully and without series obstruction or delay. It must be pointed out, however, that if false or fictitious claims are made the guilty are liable to a fine of $10,000 or one year's imprisonment, or both, in addition to paying 50 per cent. of the tax evaded. If a person is found guilty of failing to make a return before Saturday he is liable to a fine of not more than $1,000 and, in addition, 25 per cent. of the amount of tax due.

No Leniency for Delinquents, Says Collector Malley

No leniency toward delinquent taxpayers will be countenanced by Collector of Internal Revenue John F. Malley. The assistance of honest Federal income taxpayers will be invoked in rounding up the dodger of income taxes. A huge dragnet for the apprehension of all income taxdodgers is in process of organization, according to a statement issued today by Collector Malley.

The non-appearance of the name of a person who is liable to the tax on the posted list of income taxpayers, to be published as soon as the returns are completed on March 15, will be the signal for the preliminary investigation of such individual by the Federal authorities.

"In justice to the man who honestly and promptly meets his income tax obligations, the heavy penalties provided by the new revenue bill for failure or refusal must and will be strictly enforced," said Collector Malley.

"Ignorance of the law cannot consistently be offered as an excuse by the man who fails to file his income on time. Wide publicity has been given the provisions of the new revenue bill."

SUGGESTS CONFERENCE IN $,3000,000 MINE SUIT

Judge Hraley in the Supreme Court today heard arguments on a demurrer of the defendant in suits of the Arizona Commercial Mining Company against the Iron Cap Mining Company, and suggested a conference with a view of preparing questions of law for consideration by the full court. The corporations own adjacent mines in Arizona, and the plaintiff company claiming that during the last three years the Iron Cap Company has taken over $3,000,000 worth of ore from the Arizona [illegible] that the Iron Cap be enjoined from [illegible] proceeds of sale of the ore.

LAUNDRYMAN BADLY INJURED BY MANGLER

Albert Craig, eighteen, of West Concord street, a machinist's helper employed by the Creamer-Wing Laundry, South End, while at work caught his arm in the shafting of a mangling machine. His cries attracted the attention of William Ross, a fellow-workman, who switched off the power. Craig was rushed to the City Hospital where his name was placed on the dangerous list.

CANDY FAILS TO TEMPT SHOW GIRLS WHO ARE LIVING ON DIET OF FISH

ALL HAPPY AND GAIN WEIGHT

Experiment to Prove the Value of Sea Food As Nourishment

By HAZEL CANNING.

The second day of the meatless meals of the "Fish Squad" dawned this morning, and six young ladies of the "Take It From Me" company, undaunted, wakened to continue their experiment to prove that man and woman may live on fish alone.

The "Take It From Me Girls" Monday night, after a dinner of broiled mackerel, green salad, cream fish chowder, cheese, coffee and rolls, pronounced themselves happy and contented, and taking on weight.

"We know we are," announced the Misses Sawyer, sisters, dancers and fish enthusiasts, "but we do not mind. Let us have fish."

REFUSED TO EAT CANDY.

There are stories wild and mercifial told of persons dieting to remove superfluous flesh, for instance. Stories of hungry eyes, and fierce denial, when the candy box is waved under dieting eyes, which water as they refuse. No such stories are pertinent in the case of the "Fish Squad." As the "Take It From Me" girls explained.

"Miss Grey," announced Miss Estel White, "was offered candy. She had a piece, just biting it. 'No candy,' I announced to her across the hall.

"'Oh, I forgot,' she faltered, and with heavenly only possessed by those who are not hungry, she removed the candy and tasted it not."

"For it's very easy to deny yourself sweets if you are having enough to eat without candy. But on the other kind of diet——" Miss Theresa Wardell shook her titian curls and spoke like a grandmother, for, herself a fish "squadder," she spoke from experience.

Dr. James R. Thornton, who is conducting the experiment, is in communication with Manager Nowak of the Shepard stores colonial restaurant every day as to the food to be served and the cooking. "If anyone regards this as a piece of play acting," explained Dr. Thornton, "he is much mistaken.

"It is a serious test to prove what I have always contended, that fish is an every-day-in-the-week food, and that the human body in better for more fish and less meat."

"Quite so," explained Manager Nowak of the restaurants. "Fish for years has been under a prejudice for no other reason than blind tradition. If as much talent and culinary care were taken to cook fish, as to cook fancy desserts, we would have a generation of fish eaters.

ORIGINALITY IS NEEDED.

"To popularize fish, to make it a food that a man will miss as much as steak or chicken, let the romance, and the poesy of the piquant sauce enter in. Lemon, butter, tomato—these, fitly compounded, give to fish a distinction that plain, dreary frying may never give.

"Then let the fish cook copy recipes of other nations, in their fish dishes. For instance the Chinese. We will have, before the week is out, a Chinese chop suey to go with our Chinese room and our Chinese waitresses. Let fish be combined, in made dishes, with other foods. Use originality in preparation, and fish will become popular beyond all present belief."

Manager of the restaurants Nowak speaks with authority, as, in London, at the Trocadero Restaurant and at the Hyde Park Hotel, two world famous hostelries, he served fish to the titled of all Europe.

One thing the experiment, hardly more than a day old, has developed. That is the willingness and the good spirit of all concerned, from the Fish Editor to the "Take It from Me Girls"; from the managers of the Shepard stores to the costumed waitresses, to co-operate with interest.

"For this is an experiment education," the young ladies of the "Take It from Me" company have agreed. "And we are doing our bit to help educate the public. We are also learning to like fish more than before."

DIET AID TO DANCING.

"We will dance tonight," was the announcement of the "Take It From Me Girls" at breakfast. Our first day's fish has put poetry in our toes. So tonight—when the music starts in the Chinese restaurant, little ladies of the "Fish Squad" will dance to show all interested that one may be very happy, active, and dancing on fish and fish alone.

War Clears Minds of Brothers Who Ran Away

Allentown, Pa., March 11.—Almost unbelievable, dramatic and thrilling are the war records of the Salmon brothers, Andrew and Francis, of this city. The pair escaped at the outbreak of the war from the State Homeopathic Insane Hospital at Rittersville, Pa., and enlisted in the army and navy branches of service respectively. The ordeal of fire that both underwent completely purged their minds of any defects, and they are as sane and sound today as any man in Allentown.

According to the story told by their mother, Mrs. Mary Salmon, the elder boy, Francis, made a glorious record with the Rainbow Division.

The other brother, Andrew, enlisted in the navy and, as a member of the crew of the U. S. destroyer Shaw went through the harrowing experience when that vessel as a convoy was rammed and cut in half by the British liner Aquitania, a troopship.

AMERICAN FISH STORES FORCING PRICES DOWN

It is not to be expected that the average retailer can sell fish at the price it is being sold in the Boston American fish stores. This fish is being sold at cost. But the American's stores are proving that the average retailer can sell fish for seven, eight or nine cents a pound and make a profit. The stores are showing that people like fish and will eat tons of it if they can get it at a reasonable price.

TO OPEN MORE STORES.

Two special motor trucks have been secured, and henceforth will do nothing but keep the Boston American Fish Stores supplied with fish.

Preparation for opening new stores continue steadily. But the task of opening new stores and keeping the twelve stores opened by the American in six days supplied with fish is a mighty one, and tirelessly as the American forces are striving to meet the demands from all over New England for fish stores, arrangements for new stores cannot be completed all at once.

Alden A. Mills, the fish expert, is not only continuing plans for new stores around Boston, in sections not yet served, and in other parts of New England, but he is also at work to solve the problem of serving the inhabitants of small towns in this section of the country with fish at cost. Because of the heavy transportation, labor and overhead charges, it is impossible for the American to open stores in small places.

It is only by doing a tremendous volume of business that the American fish stores are able to maintain five and six cents as the price for fish. Consequently only the larger centres can be served in this way. Within a short time every city and town of any size in this part of the country will have its Boston American fish store, delivering fish at cost.

But Mr. Mills is desirous that inhabitants of the smaller places also have the advantage of fish at cost, and he is confident that within a short time the American will be able to announce that this problem has been solved, like the many others connected with the stores.

FRESH FISH TO BE SOLD.

Plans are actively going forward to make these stores permanent institutions throughout New England. Mr. Mills is also formulating plans whereby the Boston American Fish Stores will be able to offer fresh fish at cost within the near future.

If the plans now being made can be successfully carried out, high priced fish will be a thing of the past.

The Boston American Fish Stores are open every day. They sell frozen fish at cost. They are selling tons and tons of fish apiece each day. If they are to continue to remain open they must continue to sell hundreds of tons each week.

The Boston American is doing all in its power to lower the cost of living. It is up to the public to do its share. Patronize the nearest Boston American Fish Store. Eat Fish!

SLASHES HIMSELF WITH CASE KNIFE

Worcester, March 11.—Using a case knife, Henry Renauld, thirty-eight, of No. 13 Lamartine street, while temporarily insane, mutilated himself so badly that his name was placed on the danger list at City Hospital. He also slashed himself on both wrists.

587 EGGS LAID BY 49 HENS IN FEBRUARY

Sanford, Me., March 11.—Mrs. Mary E. Brown of this town has forty-nine hens that she claims laid during January 497 eggs, an average of ten each for the month.

Salvation Army to Stop Tambourine Quest for Alms

Philadelphia, March 11.—The demure Salvation Nell, with her clinking tambourine, who has invaded saloons, thoroughfares and public places in search for alms for years, will be seen no more. This decision was reached recently at an executive meeting of the Salvation Army officers held in this city. The "Army" decided to also abandon the use of "free-will" offering boxes installed in public places.

To supplant the passing of the picturesque Salvation Army lassie and her tambourine it has been decided to hold annual "drives" in which the money needed for the year will be raised. The first of these "drives" will take place in May, when a $10,000,000 campaign will be conducted throughout the country.

ADAMS BLACK JACK

"Quenched Our Thirst and Cleared Our Throats"

"WHILE our outfit awaited for hours the word to go into action, believe me our nerves were on edge, and with no water at hand our throats became parched and dry,—our voices hoarse and husky. I was getting desperate when I reached in my pocket and found a package of Adams Black Jack. I passed it out among the boys and the way it braced us up, quenched our thirst, and cleared our throats is something I'll never forget."

THEATRES

COLLIER GIVES DELIGHT IN LIAR'S ROLE

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Lay a bet on Willie Collier. It's usually safe.

"Nothing but Lies" was obviously suggested and inspired by "Nothing but the Truth," Collier's success of last season. Pieces so lacking in originality are pretty sure to fall flat. You would be justified in thinking that this season Collier couldn't be well equipped, and you would be wrong.

"Nothing but Lies" is a comedy of mirth as a returned soldier. The Willie Collier fun right rocked with laughter for two hours and a half. Aaron Hoffman, who wrote the piece, didn't achieve such an ingenious and plausible farce comedy as the author of "Nothing but the Truth," but his play is as funny, even if there isn't much excuse for some of the situations, and a lot of the old bits of stage business are resurrected to assist.

Collier himself could be depended upon to find some comedy in "Antique Rex," and he simply revels in the rough-riding liar of "Nothing but Lies." He is wise enough to surround himself with first class people and he doesn't bag all the best parts in the show, like a good many stars. Thus Rapley Holmes, the mountainous comedian, is able to shine, and so is Frank Monroe.

Holmes and Collier are business partners. They sell advertising. Holmes has a son, a budding detective, who writes an article exposing the business methods of the firm for a Greenwich village paper.

Holmes has a daughter who adores the truth and who has married Collier, her fiancee, agree to speak it even though it is out of his line. The posterior authorities are looking for the author of the Bolshevist article, which appears to be a violation of the laws regarding the use of the mails, and Collier's efforts to tell the truth and shield the fugitive, who is his brother, gets the whole cast into hilarious trouble.

Florence Enright, as a half-witted stenographer, scored well, and so did William Riley Hatch, as a country politician. Edith Hallor was plump and pleasing as the soldier and Mary Harper was agreeable in a small part. Clyde North, as the "nut" brother, did an excellent piece of eccentric acting. The entire cast was capital.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Those who have not lost the fondness for being entertained by the pleasing combination of fun, music and pretty girls which goes to constitute a present day burlesque show, will be interested to learn that "The Million Dollar Dolls" is the attraction for the week at Waldron's Casino. A sparkling musical number entitled "In a Whirl of Pleasure," has been written especially for the company by Abe Leavitt, and the author and manager, John G. Jermon, claim that while they undertook a complete and fairly consistent story—judged by Mirthquake standards—that complete consistency is at no time permitted to obstruct a continuous flow of mirthful situations and melodious musical numbers.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—The leading act of the bill shown yesterday at Loew's Orpheum Theatre was the crowning feature of a combined program of vaudeville and photoplays that proved one of the most satisfying of the season. "Back to Rinses" was its title, and it is a musical comedietta with a charming little plot played by a company of ten people headed by Eddie Riley, Jack Collins and Irene Lagley. The music is sprightly, the comedy of the lively sort, and scenery and costumes formed a colorful background. Others on the bill were Fern and Howell, in their comedy act, "Law is Law"; Herbert Brooks and company, in startling mystic feats; Pollard, comedian in monologue; Arthur Haskins in songs, and Leonard and Neil. On the screen there were shown the latest news pictures and the photoplay, "Extravagance," picturing Dorothy Dalton as the butterfly wife of a wealthy man brought to correction through a drastic experience.

MODERN AND BEACON THEATRES —For all-round excellence of offerings it would be hard to excel the program of first-run photoplays shown yesterday at the Modern and Beacon Theatres, which continues unchanged throughout the week. Pauline Frederick, accomplished and beautiful actress as she is, was pictured in "The Woman on the Index," a stirring story of a woman's valiant fight to preserve her good name in face of contending conditions that are framed to rob her of it. There are several big dramatic scenes that test the gifted star's ability which she graces with a power of expression entirely adequate to the demands. The supporting company is in every manner satisfying. Bryant Washburn was shown in "Poor Boob."

NEW WALDORF THEATRE—Work upon the New Waldorf Theatre has progressed so well that the opening date is definitely announced for next Monday, March 17. That this will be a valuable addition to Boston's list of theatres appears assured as the plans of the building call for all that modern theatre construction demands for the comfort and convenience and for the proper presentation of the bills of vaudeville and motion pictures of which a high standard of excellence will be available. One of the largest pipe organs in New England will be installed.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—There was not a depreciating feature on the bill shown yesterday at the Codman Square Theatre, the program combined of vaudeville and motion pictures being so composed as to give the maximum of pleasure. In the vaudeville bill there were presented Roland & Ray in their song and comedy skit, "Do You Remember"; Hall & Delay, a clever couple whose singing and dancing were distinctive; Moran & Wiser, comedy hat throwers; and Wallin & Le Favor, comedians of whirlwind variety.

BOSTON THEATRE—"For the Freedom of the East," with Lady Tsen Mei as the star, is a thrilling melodrama at the Boston Theatre this week. Lady Tsen Mei is not also a movie star. She is also appearing personally at Keith's Theatre this week.

Plays That Remain

PARK SQUARE THEATRE — Only seven more performances remain of Selwyn's dramatic triumph, "The Crowded Hour," which last night began the ninth and farewell week of its long and successful engagement at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre.

COPLEY THEATRE — "Iiarside's Carpet," Harold Brighthouse's satirical comedy, began its second and last week at the Copley. Repertory Theatre last evening. It will be followed next Monday by a revival of Sir Arthur Pinero's famous farce, "The Magistrate."

COLONIAL THEATRE—Fred Stone in "Jack O' Lantern," began the twelfth week at the Colonial Theatre last evening still holding its own in the way of crowded houses.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Witty lines, sparkling repartee and really funny situations make "Furs and Frills," the musical comedy novelty now running at the Shubert Theatre, unusual. It started on its second month in Boston last evening.

MAJESTIC THEATRE — McIntyre and Heath have been entertaining the theatre-goers of Boston hugely for nearly four weeks and they have had their engagement extended several times, owing to the great popularity of themselves and of the big scenic musical extravaganza, "Hello, Alexander."

HODGE OFFERS GOOD COMEDY AT PLYMOUTH

William Hodge, after an absence from Boston of more than a year, returned last night in "A Cure for Curables" at the Plymouth Theatre. The play is advertised as also a cure for the blues. That description held good for the first Boston audience that viewed it on its second visit to the city, if curtain calls and enthusiastic applause are the criterions.

It were superfluous, at this late date, to tell the story of the play. As so many appreciative audiences have already learned, a "Cure for Curables" deals with a houseful of people at the Pendergrass sanatorium in Virginia, who imagine they are ill. The successor to the old doctor receives the patients out to garden. They become well, and, in time, help their physician to inherit the place after the very bad villain is disposed of.

As in all the Hodge plays, William Hodge, the hero with the country dialect, carries all before him after he gets started. As also in the William Hodge plays, Hodge dominates the stage, furnishing the humor of gravity for the well-rounded company. He is again his shrewd self, delightful and beloved of those who hear him.

The supporting company is excellent. Charles E. Vernor's colonel, Brigham Royce's J. Cunningham Hale and Carson Davenport's Bishop Ratledge standing out as characterizations vibrant with reality. But it is hardly fair to distinguish in a company where each part was taken with finished ease.

Many curtain calls, after the second act, and applause that induced a little speech from Mr. Hodge at the end of the third act, testified to the popularity of the play. There was a large and enthusiastic audience.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Boston has a lively interest in "Common Clay," which is unquestionably the great modern problem play. Its interest dates from the time that "Common Clay" was first announced from Cambridge as the Harvard Prize Play, and runs through the wonderful two years of New York success, and the seventeen weeks' run in Boston. And Boston has continued its interest in the things that intimately encompass "Common Clay." Cleves Kinkead's masterpiece, in which Jane Cowl appeared for an entire year in New York city, and the beautiful screen version in which Fannie Ward is said to have done the superb emotional work of her life, which is shown this week at Gordon's Olympia.

She marries for money and there develops conditions that make for a stirring drama. Dorothy Dalton was shown in "Extravagance," in which she is pictured as the wasteful wife of a rich man. The comedy was Fatty Arbuckle's latest film farce, "Love."

TELLEGEN IN "BLIND YOUTH" A SUCCESS

There wasn't a thing lacking last night at Lou Tellegen's first night presentation in Boston of the play "Blind Youth." First, there was Lou Tellegen, the star; Lou Tellegen, the collaborator, with Willard Mack, the playwright, and still again Lou Tellegen, under whose direction the play was staged.

And, last but not least, there was Mrs. Lou Tellegen—our own "Jerry" Farrar—who came over from New York just to see her capable husband show Boston people some of the qualities as man and actor she evidently saw in him that caused her to become Mrs. Lou Tellegen.

The audience at the Tremont Theatre saw a double bill, so to speak. There were the three acts of the play itself. Then there were the entre acts in which Mrs. Tellegen whiled away the audience's time by showing herself to her best advantage in one of the boxes.

Mrs. Tellegen, or Geraldine Farrar —take your choice—arrived just fashionably late. The audience forgot the play for a moment while it applauded the famous wife of the play's leading man. Mrs. Tellegen, gowned in a silver-spangled evening gown and carrying a gorgeous ostrich fan of ostrich plumes, was almost as much applauded as her husband.

When in response to curtain calls at the end of the second act Mr. Tellegen expressed his appreciation in a neat curtain speech of a Boston audience's welcome, he was followed by his wife, who, from her seat in the box, bespoke for him the same love from Boston people that she herself enjoyed. All-in-all, it was very much a Tellegen night.

Tellegen easily and by talent dominates the play. A couple of artist friends, portrayed by Mark Smith and Ralph Locke, furnished the comedy contrast. Miriam Sears as Frances Granger, the artist's fiancee, was just what people mean when they say "she is sweet." Her part was made nons too easy by the proximity of Miss Farrar and the delicious situations the audience wove out of the star making love to an exceptionally pretty girl while his wife in real life sat looking on from a box.

Jennie Eustis as the artist's mother, depicted the over-fond parent who made a capital end out of her son. Harry Wilson, well acted by Sydney Riggs.

GAYETY THEATRE—Joe Hurtig's burlesque wonder show opened a week's engagement yesterday at the Gayety Theatre, and with George B. Murphy and Primrose Semon at the helm, the show is called a musical comedyette in two acts, and is indeed a clever burlesque musical comedy. There is more plot than usual in a burlesque show, and it is replete with songs and dances, which in their turn are set to music with tinkly tunes and catchy airs.

Coming Events

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—Seats for the Boston engagement of "Adam and Eva," a comedy written by Guy Bolton and George Middleton, authors of "Polly With a Past," which will be presented for the first time in Boston on next Monday evening at the Park Square Theatre, were placed on sale this morning.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Mary Nash will be seen in the leading role of "The Big Chance" at the Majestic for a short visit, beginning Monday, March 17 (St. Patrick's Day night). The original cast, including William B. Kelly, William F. Sheehan, Annie Mack Berlein, Ben Hendricks, Ramsey Wallace, Harry Roberts, Katherine Harris Barrymore and others will be seen in Miss Nash's support.

ELKS' BENEFIT—There is a great demand for seats for the monster theatrical benefit that will be conducted under the auspices of the Boston Lodge of Elks P. O. E., B. P. O. E. to be given on Tuesday afternoon, March 25, at the Colonial Theatre, the entire proceeds of which will be devoted to the purpose of welcoming the large number of home-coming soldiers and sailors. The program is a mighty one and includes the principal portions of an actors' fund affair, inasmuch as it will offer attractions from the leading theatres.

MARIE CAHILL IS FEATURE AT KEITH'S

One of the best bills seen in many weeks is showing this week at Keith's Theatre. Marie Cahill, in her first venture into the vaudeville field, holds the headline position on the bill, but any one of three or four other acts might well fill the place given her.

Miss Cahill sings a medley of some of the biggest hits she made when her name was blazed in electric lights on Broadway. She interpolates a well-written and deeply humorous monologue and closes her act with several colored dialect songs. She was well received.

Lady Teen Mei, styled the Chinese Nightingale, a native Chinese girl with a wonderful stage personality, appeared on full life while in an adjoining house she was showing in the films. This Oriental songbird sings popular American songs with a marvellous diction that would put to shame some of our American vaudeville artists. She also sang a catchy number in French dialect, with a most distinct hit and took several bows.

Georgia Price with Henri Young at the piano was a whole show in himself and gave excellent imitations of Raymond Hitchcock, George M. Cohan, Eddie Leonard, Eddie Foy, Belle Baker and Al Jolson. Her impersonation of Fannie Brice in a Hebrew-Egyptian dance unveiled the bosses.

Other acts on the bill were Willie Hale and Brother in "Bits of Vaudeville"; Francis Renault, a very good female impersonator; Dan Bruce and Margie Duffet Dunigan in "Say Boys"; Keyhole" and Earl and Helen Reynolds and Nellie Donegan in a whirlwind roller-skating act.

ARLISS SEEN IN BRILLIANT DOUBLE BILL

His offering consisted of "The Mollusc," a comedy in three acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, and "A Well-Remembered Voice," by Sir James M. Barrie, the latter being presented in Boston for the first time.

In "The Mollusc" Mr. Arliss appeared as Tom Kemp—a dashing young Britisher who has spent most of his time in Colorado, and who has returned to his home in England at a most opportune time to become an important factor in a marital situation.

Explaining that a mollusc is one addicted to inertia, Tom Kemp starts in on the task of reforming his married sister from this family ailment, and his task is confronted with many humorous situations from the start.

The part of the sister is ably taken by Viva Birkett, who portrays the role of the ultra-fashionable English matron, who has become a victim of indolence and ease so much so that she is in danger of losing the love of her husband and children, by permitting the children's pretty governess to practically fill her place in the home.

The Americanized brother plunges into the domestic situation and saves the sister from herself, and incidentally falls in love with the governess. The play throughout is replete with wholesome comedy, interesting situations augmented with superb stage settings.

Excellent acting by the supporting cast characterized the production. The role of Mrs. Baxter was portrayed by Miss Birkett with finesse and stage presence of high degree while that of Mr. Baxter, the over-indulgent husband, who was fast slipping away from the affections of his indolent wife, was well taken by Philip Merivale.

In the striking novelty of the evening, "A Well-Remembered Voice," Mr. Arliss shows to his best advantage as an elderly artist, timid and misunderstood. It is a typically Barrie production and abounds in humanity. He is ably assisted by Mrs. Arliss as Mrs. Dowr, the wife; George Ingoldsby, as Captain Armitage, Harry Maitland, as Mr. Rogers, and Ward Grimwood, Miss Laura Bell and Philip Merivale, as "A Well-Remembered Voice." The play has an occult story, but is filled with joy and cheer.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—"Under Orders." W. A. Brady's thrilling feature, was the top offering at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday and it proved to be a most thrilling melodrama with the popular moving picture cast.

ARLISS SEEN IN BRILLIANT DOUBLE BILL

NEW LEADING LADY AT ARLINGTON THEATRE

"The Lion and the Mouse," a four-act play by Charles Klein, opened at the Arlington Theatre last night with a new leading lady in the part of Shirley Rossmore. Miss Ruth Robinson showed herself to be a young woman of talent and grace that are a distinct addition to the stock company.

Although the audience held its opinion in abeyance last evening, giving the new comer slight recognition upon her entrance, they accorded her strong scene with Mark Kent at the end of the third act a genuine burst of enthusiasm. She appears to be an actress of taste, and either the scenic artist painted the interior of the Ryder mansion to suit the lady's mouse gray gown or she took a piece of the wainscoting when she called on the dressmaker in order to make the proper match.

Mark Kent rose to the part of the lion in a sufficiently savage manner, and portrayed the money magnate with effective realism, although a heavier built man would have filled the swivel chair more acceptably providing he had equal talent with the leading character actor.

CONGRESSMAN DALLINGER DEMANDS SIX MONTHS' PAY FOR HEROES

Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Massachusetts believes in, indorses and will favor six months' pay for soldiers, sailors and marines.

Two of Massachusetts' representatives, one in the House, the other in the Senate, have now espoused the cause of the fighting men of the nation in indorsing the Boston American's petition to suitably reward the services of the nation's heroes with a six months' bonus. The first expression of approval came from United States Senator David I. Walsh.

Their endorsements mean their votes for a bill which will provide the money for this gratuity by a grateful nation to its fighting men.

HITS OPPONENTS OF PLAN.

Congressman Dallinger not only declared himself as in favor of six months' pay from the very first, but in his telegram he impugns as unpatriotic Americans those who oppose this reward.

The Boston American's telegram found Congressman Dallinger at Hot Springs, Ark., where he is resting a few days. He was asked his views. He replied by wire:

"Your telegram received. Have always favored the payment by the United States government of a bonus of six months' pay to honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the recent war against Germany.

"The Dominion of Canada, with a population smaller than the State of New York, has done this very thing, and I cannot understand why any patriotic American citizen should oppose such a manifest act of justice."

Congressman Dallinger lives in Cambridge, and that city is nothing if not patriotic. Not only have members of its city government declared themselves heartily in favor of the six months' bonus plan, but one of the first official acts of Mayor Edward W. Quinn on returning from Washington, where he has been attending a conference of Mayors soon, to align himself with Congressman Dallinger in support of the petition.

As to his reason, Mayor Quinn declares: "Some of our men who have returned have been fortunate enough to receive their old jobs back again. Others have not been so fortunate. The bonus of six months' pay would certainly help to put them over this period of stress.

SHOULD MAKE SACRIFICES.

"Before the armistice was signed we were willing to make large appropriations and many sacrifices in order to win. Now when we are returning to peace-time conditions we should be just as willing to make whatever sacrifices are necessary to show a proper regard for the welfare of our men.

"I believe the American is doing a great work in furthering this petition and it is assured of my support."

Signatures to the American's petition now total over 200,000 and with volunteer workers giving freely of their time and effort to promote the interests of service men this number is sure to be left far behind.

Many of the largest organizations of New England have gone on record as favoring the petition, and individual endorsements of prominent men and women of the six States have been given by the score.

The overwhelming unanimity of sentiment prevailing in the New England States is bound to make itself felt at the reconvening of Congress. While the bonus of $60 is of some help to soldiers, sailors and marines, it is hardly sufficient to equip them with civilian clothing at present prices, and certainly will leave nothing with which they may support themselves until they find work. The six months' bonus would do these things and more.

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American has been established for the purpose of giving help to the soldiers and sailors of the United States Army and Navy. Answers to questions as to location of the various units appear every day in this column. Prominent attorneys are always ready and anxious to clear up difficulties of a legal nature. Any unemployed enlisted man will be given the help of the bureau toward securing a position, and the discharge of soldiers because of distress among the home folks will be facilitated.

The department is doubly efficient, as it is not operated as a question and answer column, but it working in conjunction with similar bureaus in Hearst's New York American, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner and San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Any suggestions for broadening the scope of the bureau will be gratefully received.

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

Geraldine Farrar Is in Favor of Six Months' Bonus

Geraldine Farrar, Boston's own song-bird, believes every honorably discharged soldier, sailor and marine should receive a bonus of six months' pay from the government and strongly indorses the petition of the Hearst newspapers to give every one charged with such a cash gift with which to start life anew.

In speaking of the proposition with a Boston American reporter, she said:

"I heartily approve and indorse the Boston American's campaign to have a bill passed to provide for a bonus from the United States government for six months' salary to every soldier, sailor and marine discharged from service.

"The men who have been willing to make the supreme sacrifice for his country should be protected from actual want upon his return to civilian life. In the general confusion of readjustment, many of the men dependent upon their jobs for a livelihood will find it hard to get work right away. This bonus measure would be but a small way for the nation to express its gratitude in a practical way to the individual soldier."

DANDRUFF GOES! HAIR GETS THICK, WAVY, BEAUTIFUL

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will instantly vanish and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, its exhilarating stimulative and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.—Advertisement.

GIRLS! MAKE LEMON LOTION TO WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY SKIN

In all weathers the skin and complexion can be kept wonderfully clear, soft and white by the daily use of this expensive lemon lotion which any girl or woman can easily prepare.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole pint of the very best lemon lotion at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white from your pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and mix up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and hidden beauty of any skin. Those who will make it a habit to gently massage this lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands once or twice daily, may be repaid with a skin that is flexible and young looking and a peach-like complexion.—Advertisement.

Wonderful Results At 70 From Internal Baths

Mrs. I. M. Wadlin, 2043 National ave., San Diego, Cal., writes Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute of New York as follows:

"Within the last month have had wonderful results all inflammation has nearly subsided. I could hardly expect a woman over 70 could recover from a trouble of long standing so quickly as a younger person. Money could not buy my H. L. Cascade if I could not get another."

It is difficult to believe how many internal troubles internal bathing will relieve and cure, but the statistics published show that 85% of human ailments are caused by accumulated waste in the lower intestine.

The "J. B. L. Cascade," the scientific method of internal bathing, removes, in a perfectly natural way, all poisonous waste, and has been so successful in promoting health that over half a million internal Americans are now using it regularly.

It is the invention of Dr. Tyrrell, M. D., of New York, and for 25 years was a specialist on internal Bathing. It is now being shown and explained by all Liggett's Rexall stores in New England.

They will give you on request a very interesting booklet on Internal Bathing by Dr. Tyrrell, "Why Man or To-Day Is Only 50% Efficient."

Ask for it today and know more about yourself and your functions than you ever have before.

UNEMPLOYED PAY HIGH FOR JOBS, IS CLAIM

Charges that the private employment agencies are exacting exorbitant rates from the unemployed were made by Charles J. Hoddson of the American Federation of Labor and other speakers before the legislative Committee on Legal Affairs.

"In practically every case they demand a fee equal to one week's pay," said Mr. Hodsdon, "and I have known of teachers with scant funds who have been charged 5 per cent. of their yearly salary and been compelled to pay it within two months."

Harry J. Dooley, in a navy uniform, said that the average cost to the employment agencies of securing a position is $1 and that the lowest fee charged the unemployed is $10.

They urged the passage of a law to provide that all employment agencies shall be placed under the jurisdiction of the State Board of Labor and Industries, which shall have authority to fix the rates.

Mrs. L. B. Rantoul of the Women's Trade Union League, Mrs. Susan W. Fitz, Gerald of the Federation of Working Women's Clubs and Walter L. McMennimen of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen joined in support of the proposed law.

McMennimen charged that the private employment agencies maintained a lobby at Washington to defeat the United States Employment Agency bill.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls, will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last every one in the family for months.—Advertisement.

'NEVER SAY DIE!' MAIMED HERO ON THE JOB

One-Legged Veteran of Belleau Wood Takes a Hand at Selling Newspapers

If in the twinkling of an eye the shade of the world changes; if the rosy hue becomes a dull drab and rain falls where before there was sun; and if, through some lightning turn of life's wheel, the outlook for the future is such that to go on cheerfully seemingly is a waste of energy—tell that to the Marines.

Or, rather, tell it to Frank Sobkowski, U. S. Marine Corps, now Citizen Frank Sobkowski, one-legged newsdealer who has set up his stand on Church Green, at the intersection of Summer and Bedford streets.

At 4 o'clock on the morning of June 17, 1918, the 51st Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion of Marines, in Belleau Wood at Chateau-Thierry, was systematically employed in subtracting from the total number of grayclad Germans inhabiting the earth, through the medium of a withering machine-gun fire. Then with a fearful shock a German high explosive shell burst in the vicinity of the 51st Company's location, nearly a direct hit.

BOUND UP SHATTERED LEG.

Gripped with almost unbearable pain, Marine Sobkowski did not forget his Marine training. Frantically he tore out his first-aid packet, cut away a portion of his clothing and coolly bound up the stump of his right leg. It had been blown off by the knee. Then, for an hour and a half, while the German shelling continued, Sobkowski shivered in pain and waited to be removed to a dressing station.

Crippled for life but still "full of pep," as he said, Sobkowski returned to America last Fall and began the process of mapping out his future work in this life. He could not go back to his old job in Detroit, where he had been an iron moulder in the shops of a large automobile concern. It was heavy work, requiring an active and tireless man, one who needed at all times the use of two strong legs and the strength that he were to avoid annihilation in the course of his day's toil. The foundry hours were long and the work was indoors not an ideal environment for a man who had been gassed and whose lungs was for the open places.

The outlook was somewhat discouraging. Sobkowski admits that it was discouraging. He discloses also that he had the "blues" because he had no parents to whom he could turn. They died while he was overseas, both father and mother, he states briefly, and then does not want to linger on that subject.

"I was a little out of luck, but other fellows were worse off," he says.

JOINS "NEWSIE" ARMY.

Eventually Marine Sobkowski decided his course. Recently he applied at City Hall, for a sidewalk permit to sell newspapers and periodicals. He secured a stand and set up his modest establishment on the curb of the sidewalk on Church Green at Summer and Bedford streets. Today is his second in his career as a newsdealer, and it is going as "big" as the first day's business. His first day he reports to be highly satisfactory and today he has secured a large number of permanent customers.

One man approached Sobkowski's stand and bought an American.

"My office is over on Federal street and I always buy my papers and magazines at the South Station," he said. "My stenographer told me there was a marine hero who wouldn't give up and who was running a stand here. Hereafter I buy from you. Good luck, old boy."

It is Sobkowski's intention to keep his stand running Summer and Winter. It is situated over the subway grating through which in the cold months a warm current of air rises. With a wind-break to set up in the Winter his booth will be adequately heated, he says.

AIDED BY BUSINESS MEN.

It was through the kindness of several Church Green business men that Sobkowski was enabled to secure his stand. Those who especially interested themselves in lending a helping hand to the marine, who was courageous enough to fight against his handicap, were Messrs. Hershey of the Regal Shoe Company store and A. W. Perry, representing the owners of the building back of the stand.

Sobkowski enlisted with the "Devil Dogs" at Detroit, May 21, 1917, and was sent to the Marine training camp at Paris Island off the coast of South Carolina, where he trained for three months, after which he was sent to Quantico, Va., December 6th, as a member of the 51st Company, Sixth Machine Gun Battalion, he went overseas and on New Year's eve St. Nazaire for Damblain in the Verdun sector.

MARINE ALWAYS CHEERFUL.

Within sound of the heavy guns he trained at Damblain until March 14th of this year when the Marines were ordered into the front line for baptism of fire. In two months they were withdrawn and began a hike southward over France. It was the order to proceed to Belleau Wood on June 1st. From then until the 17th he went over the top a number of times and assisted in gathering in more than 200 prisoners and scores of German machine guns.

"I was hit on June 17th," he says in his matter-of-fact way. "The German explosive killed my pal, Sergeant Kite of Philadelphia, and wounded eleven, including myself."

He was removed to Base Hospital No. 1 and assigned to a bed next to Major Edward Isle of Brooklyn, who with eleven machine gun bullets in his body, died on the following morning at 5 o'clock.

From then on Sobkowski's life was to know other than lodging houses in Boston on the Mt. Vernon.

He was here that he learned that his parents' home in Minnesota had burned down in the fires near Moose Lake.

Marine Sobkowski has lost his right leg, both his parents died while he was in France, and the only home he knew other than lodging houses is no more. Yet he is cheerful—he is a marine.

CRIPPLED MARINE HERO NOW A 'NEWSIE'

Here is Frank Sobkowski, a marine who lost a leg in the famous fight of Belleau Wood. Returning "home disabled, he is unable to resume heavy employment as an iron worker. And he has set up a newsstand in Church Green, corner of Summer and Bedford streets. Snapshot shows him making a sale.

RECLUSE STORE-KEEPER SLAIN FOR MONEY

Police Believe Apponaug Man Was Followed Home From Providence

Providence, March 11.—Robbery now is believed to have been the motive for the murder at Apponaug Saturday night of George A. Gardner, seventy-six-year-old storekeeper. This theory is advanced by Police Chief Ellis A. Cranston of Warwick, despite the fact that there was $16 in sight when the body was found Sunday.

Chief Cranston believes the murderer was frightened away before he could secure all the money on the premises.

Neighbors say that Gardner had lived the life of a recluse for the last three years, during which time his wife has been confined to a hospital. Much of his business is said to have been in money-lending, and he had the reputation of being extremely exacting in requiring payments.

Residents of the vicinity declare that Gardner, while an old man and a Civil War veteran, made few friends, due to his argumentative propensities. His own money he hoarded carefully, and the search following the murder disclosed several money bags in unusual hiding places in both the store and residence.

Saturday, according to Chief Cranston, Gardner went to Providence and drew from his bank money, which amounted to $56. This has not been located, and the Providence police have been called into the case on the theory that Gardner may have been followed home from Providence and murdered for his money.

20 CITIES HELP CAMPAIGN FOR HOME-OWNERS

Department of Labor Pressing Work Along "City Planning" Line

By International News Service.

Washington, March 11.—Reconstruction building plans of the Department of Labor in its "own your own home" campaign now include the promised co-operation of twenty cities, the department announced today. The campaign will be conducted along the "city planning" line, and model cities, so far as owners of homes are concerned, will be urged.

The department, through Paul Murphy of Portland, Ore., who was brought here for this work, has many pamphlets and other literature printed and ready for distribution to city planning and allied organizations.

According to department officials actual work in building is proceeding slowly, employers of labor and investors showing a seeming reluctance to start operations until costs fall, but this, they say, will gradually disappear after the building campaigns are under way.

The appeal to the builder of the home will be along the lines of more efficient and cheaper living, encourage thrift, make for greater comfort and happiness and provide for old age.

All this will be set before the prospective builder by the Department of Labor, through the organizations of these cities and the formation of committees of citizens who will handle poster contests, and other necessary work proptrly start the campaign. The plan was approved by the recent conference of Mayors and Governors in the White House.

Learns He Is Heir to $5000 While on Way to Poorhouse

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—Penniless, despondent, hopeless, on his way to the poorhouse, to become an inmate of which he had just obtained a permit, Harry Congdon, thirty-two, stopped at the postoffice from force of habit.

A clerk handed him a letter. It was from a lawyer in Syracuse, N. Y., informing Congdon that an aunt of his had died and left him $5,000.

Five seconds later the poorhouse permit had become a scrap of paper—or many scraps, and Congdon was performing a hornpipe.

A little later, on the strength of his letter, someone loaned him money to take him to Syracuse.

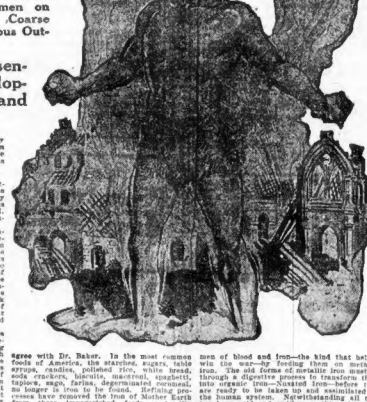
Iron Is Absolutely Essential to Greatest Development of Physical and Mental Power.



Agree with Dr. Baker. In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and other methods of home cookery, by throwing down the water plus the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another great iron loss.

"Therefore, you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt," he said. Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe aggravated conditions, with unfailing results."

Dr. Alexander Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Belleview Hospital, Blackwell Island, New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, was asked for an opinion. Dr. Sullivan said: "Modern methods of cooking and the great loss at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of Americans, and women that I have often referred to the large number of people who lack iron in the blood—and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. But, in my opinion, you can't make strong, sturdy men of blood and iron—the kind that helped win the war—by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron which you find in tablets and pills, are worthless, although a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still build in doing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents a dose. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the packages. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other forms of iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are as entirely different from Nuxated Iron.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is now advertised and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older forms of iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results in every prescription, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

WILSON, AND BILL JAMES, TOO, SIGN UP WITH BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY.

ARTHUR WILSON, who showed last year that he was really a good catcher when given plenty of work, has signed with the Braves. His surrender leaves only Red Smith as an important cog of the Tribe machine without the fold. And Red, it might be mentioned, will be in line just about the time the team lands in Columbus, Ga., for Spring training.

Wilson held out mildly, wanting a greater raise than he was offered, but has evidently thought things over. He had his best season in 1918, being good enough to force John Henry into sort of secondary position. His curacit good ball and bit hard generally adorned the bench while with the Giants general adorned the bench while with the Giants for years, though in the old Federal League he was the king of them all.

With Art and Henry attached, the Braves are not going to do much worrying about the return of Hersery Gowdy, though that event will be waited with great interest.

As we have said before, chances are Hank will be back in the country by the time the season opens, and he's so anxious to play ball he will not quibble a bit over his contract. Besides, Owner Grant realizes Hank's value sufficiently to offer him plenty of American dollars.

Tireless William James has also sent along his contract, and is sure that his training with the army has knocked all the physical ills out of his gigantic frame. Bill is getting his last trial to come back to the great glory that was his in 1914, when he piled up 26 victories and is the only two hurlers have in the history of the pastime. Should he come through, and all the doctors who have examined his wing say there's a chance, the Braves will be real contenders for the barrier.

Good Contracts, But No Bonuses for Braves.

OWNER GRANT has turned the gelid shoulder to requests for bonuses. He claims he has submitted fair figures to all his players, and that settles matters for him. And his viewpoint is heartily endorsed by Manager George Stallings and Jack Slattery, the latter's efficient Right Eye.

"Giving bonuses is one of the worst faults of magnates anxious to make good," declares Slattery. "A player getting a good salary does his best all the season. He knows he must make good, and he does. But a bonus player is different. He works his head off early and starts a record. Then, with his goal in sight, he begins to quit.

"Little things bother him, and he becomes so nervous he cannot show his usual baseball. I remember one Brave pitcher last year who had been promised a bonus for winning so many games. He was great until August, and then he began to have hard luck. He pitched well, but was so jittery he crossed himself up every now and then."

THOUGH predictions and so forth have it Bobby Roth will not be a Red Sox this season, we are still unconvinced. The deal which sent Larry Gardner et al. to Cleveland in exchange for the much wanted outfielder looks for all the world like part of a three-cornered trade.

Freddie Thomas, for instance, who was a Red Sox, goes to the Athletics. Connie Mack, building up a young team, isn't the least bit anxious to get veteran stars. Then, there's a persistent story in Philadelphia and New York which would also seem to shed light on the matter. This is to the effect that the transfer of Pitcher Kinney from the Sox to Cleveland was engineered by Owner Dunn of Cleveland.

The Philadelphia story has it that back at the Winter meeting Connie Mack, who was present, —and got him—put the matter up to Dunn, who even at that time was angling for Gardner. He asked Dunn to buy the player from the Sox, it is said, and Dunn did, it is also said.

Anyway Mack has Kinney, Dunn has Gardner, and the Red Sox are still in dire need of a good outfielder, who can hit from the right side of the plate. And Roth comes up to specifications. This being the predicting time of the year, we'd like to opine that Roth will be in the Sox outfield what time the season starts.

ALL UP, FANS; SAME UMPIRES TO 'ROAST'

New York, March 11.—It will be the same old staff of umpires in the National League that will raise the ire of the fans next Summer.

President Heydler announces that last year's arbiters have been reappointed, and gives out their names lest one or two may have been forgotten. They are Bob Emslie, Hank O'Day, Bill Klem, Charley Rigler, Pete Harrison, Bill Byron, Ernest Quigley and Charley Moran.

An informal meeting of the league was held with five clubs represented. The magnates at the conference were President Charles H. Ebbets of Brooklyn, Vice President George W. Hinst of Boston, President William F. Baker of Philadelphia, Vice President William Veeck of Chicago, and Treasurer Francis X. McQuade of New York.

The suit of the Baltimore club of the defunct Federal League against major league officials is now expected to be heard in Washington March 24. Pending the settlement of the case no action will be taken on the matter of electing a new chairman of the National Commission.

Maupome Off in Front

St. Louis, March 11.—Pierre Maupome defeated Augie Kleckhefer in the first block of their 150-point three-cushion match, 50—43

TWO AND THREE
PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH "BUGS" BAER.

WELL-KNOWN axiom among the worshippers of the lil' ivory idols is that murder and twelves will out. Two sixes ain't the kind of music that will raise the big curtain to. You can throw pairs of boxcars all night and the show will never start. Unless you can bounce seven or his big brother off the linoleum, you might as well trade the family dice for a ouija board and get into one-way communication with the man who rents furnished rooms in the place where 180 degrees is cool.

* * * *

THE dice will never get you anything but wrinkles. Once you get the ivory malaria you've got to keep shaking. Just like hop. When the needles get you, you're hooked. Ye cigarette smoker has got the tobacco needles. A sleighrider has the coke needles. And a bird who shakes the red cheaters has the celluloid needles. You can see through a pair of the celluloid bones, but you can't see through the bird who is steering 'em.

* * * *

YOU remember the first cuckoo who took the Sultan of Cold Turkey. Took him and took him good. Had 'em rolling rightside up for twenty straight passes that were as straight as a crooked pass could be.

* * * *

THE second Buff got tangled up in the Northern Lights and was sending an Eskimo along for his velvet. And sending him along right. First thing he knew the Eski was rolling sevens with only one dice. Never teach another guy your trade. Buff paddled home broke and now the needles have got the Eskimo. They're catching. Dotted Influenza.

* * * *

THE boy who made the cubes sing baritone in this quartet was the fish who went out into No Gentleman's Land and picked up a grapefruit that didn't have its adenoids amputated. It blew him right into a cannibal crap tournament. Cannibals had him measured out for sandwiches, but he severed his way out. Then he tweed and thread his way in again. Long illness is sure undertaker. He couldn't stop when the stopping was good because the needles had him.

* * * *

THE fourth guy would have been right any other place but where he happened to land. China. Funny story how he got there. Was bayoneting Imperial Potsdamers and had 'em strung out on his rifle like beads. Had to stop to let his bayonet cool off. Saw a flying machine standing around without any janitor in it and he stepped inside. She went buzz-buzz and that's all he remembered until he woke up later under a laundry ticket tree. Feeling hungry and piped a full nosebag spread out on a little terrace. The flying machine was wrapped around a fireplug and a lot of no-checkees-no-washees were talking to it with their hands.

Any kind of food standing around loose is an automatic invitation to a Buffalo, so he eases over and cuts loose. Fingers were made before forks and he had eaten all the wrinkles out of his vest before one bird gyrates over and buzzes him. Buff said he had an expression on his face like half a hornet's nest. Back home the Buff used to hang around a Chink laundry in the Wintertime, because it smelled like Palm Beach. So he added up a few of the motions and piped that the Chink was slipping him the razz for scoffing the eats.

* * * *

BUFF says that before the Chink could make any more motions a big, loose, butter-colored mandarin-ook or something waddled up and said something that sounded like a busted coffee grinder full of frogs. First Chink fatfoots off and comes back with two gold boxes that were worth some money. Man's wife would sure have to take a lot of washing to pay the laundry bill. Mandarin shakes 'em up and out popt two little ivory boxes that hum, home, sweet home, on the carpet.

Buff couldn't chirp Chinkese, the mandaroo couldn't chin English, but the bones could talk both. Mandaroon pats the bones and the Buff saw that the needles had him by the queue and had him good. Buff tosses down a dollar of his wife's hard-earned money and the mandaroon covers it with a lot of bum stuff that looks like Chinese money.

Buff throws a natural and reaches for the gravy, but the mandaroo beats him to it. Buff squawks and the mandarink pulls out a set of Chinese rules.

* * * *

THE Buffalo knew he was following a tough bird, se he motions to switch the game from crap to high throw. Chinese dice is no game for a guy who rolls 'em Dixie style. He throws his wife's last sunsucker into the ring and the Chinck smothers it with a cartload of Mongolian velvet. Buffalo figured nobody could be a spendthrift in that man's land unless he owned a string of coal cars for a pocketbook.

Mandarink thumbs the bones, fingers 'em and then palms 'em to get 'em warm. Lets 'em go and the Buff reads the verdict.

Two aces. Just two lil' dots.
But look at his toss.
One bone was a spot and the other was a blank.
Ching Ling Foo.
Buff is back home now and the needles still have him. But he wears a big pair of boxing gloves to that he can't ever pick up another bone

RINGSIDE'S SELECTIONS

Walter Travers to beat Jabber Hasson.
Freddie Williams to beat Battling Green.
Frankie (Young) Britt to beat Ralph Brady.

By RINGSIDE.

Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford, and Ralph Brady of Syracuse, who will sling boxing gloves for a chance to meet Benny Leonard for his lightweight title, are just about evenly liked by the fans of Boston boxing fans who will tonight hang up another attendance record for the Grand Opera House.

This particular Armory show has hit the popular fancy. There wasn't a good seat left at the club offices as far back as yesterday afternoon.

There is a bunch of discussion about the scrap. Britt's friends being certain Frankie will ruin the career of the Syracuse sensation, while Brady's supporters figure that "Biff Bang," as they call him, will repeat his Philadelphia stunt and pronounce Britt. At all events, it's a cinch the quarrel will be a slasher from start to finish.

Brady is in town with his own referee, Pop O'Brien of Philadelphia. Pop officiated at last night's Herman-Shubert party at New Bedford. He's a skilled ring arbiter. He reported and ran the bulk of Britt's bouts in the Unconscious City

* * *

From New Bedford comes the word that Al Shubert had all the better of Pete (Kid) Herman in their ten-round, no-decision bout last evening. Al's aggressiveness delighted one of the greatest crowds the Whaling City has known, and the great crowd delighted Herman, who got a big cut of what is reported to have been a $4,000 house.

Shubert gets busy again tonight, going to Manchester to meet Chick Hayes in a twelve-rounder. Al, being one of those busy chaps, who fills box every night, the mill should come right up to specifications. As an added attraction, Hayes will have Battling Babe Ruth in his corner as principal second.

* * *

Lawrence fans have a good bout in prospect Thursday night, when Phinney Boyle, conqueror of Charles Parker, meets Tommy Dixon of Kansas City. The latter has recently won over a bunch of good boys in his class and should give the clever Phinney plenty to think about.

Boyle, who is in for very lucrative meeting with Frank Klaus is more than anxious to erase the memory of his defeat by Carlos, and is set to carry the battling aloft all the way

If he does, Brown will have to travel to beat him. When Phinney feels like fighting all the time he's almost unbeatable.

* * *

JOE WOOD IN FOHLITE PARTY HEADING SOUTH

Junior Five Seeks Games

Montreal—Irish Patsy Cline stopped Bat Murphy of Syracuse, N. Y., first round. Murphy dislocated his shoulder and was forced to quit.

VOLK IN FRANCE AND FORD TO DRILL TUFTS

Just who will take charge of the Tufts baseball squad when Jack Slattery leaves next week to go South with the Braves, has the players and student body out Medford way guessing.

Wallie Volk was expected to succeed Slattery, but he's still over in France, and it is not thought that he will return before mid-Summer. With Wallie out of it, the destinies of the team will probably be placed in the hands of Horace Ford, captain of last year's team whose brilliant playing secured him an engagement with the Red Sox last Summer.

As Ford, who is now completing his third year in the chemical department of the engineering school, is unable to take part in the games this season, a new pilot will be elected next week. Malcolm Jeffrey, catcher two years ago, who returned to college last week after seeing service abroad in the naval flying corps, is a strong candidate for the leadership.

Most of the pitching in today's drill was done by Johnny Baltou, old Medford High twirler, and Steve Yelunis, Buck Weaver, former Lead Academy twirler, and Linnert of Belmont High also made good impressions in the workout.

Cutter, who played left field for Exeter last Spring is a prominent addition to the squad.

B. C. FIVE PASSES UP SERIES WITH BOSTON "Y"

The Boston "Y"-Boston College basketball series, which was to have got under way tonight in the former's gymnasium, is off. The reason: Captain Louis Pyhan and Jim Fitzpatrick, two of Boston College's mainstays, have quit basketball for baseball, and Manager Mahoney announces that the five is through for the season

The students are greatly disappointed over the abrupt ending of the season, they are highly elated over the excellent showing made by the team, which defeated Newport Naval Torpedo Station, took Tufts into camp twice, and whipped the Connecticut Aggies soundly last week after losing to them at Storrs the previous week

TURNER OUT TO REGAIN MAT TITLE FROM YOKEL

Joe Turner, the gold belt holder, believes he can recover the world's middleweight wrestling championship from Mike Yokel when he meets the Westerner at the Grand Opera House Thursday night and thus even up for his defeat at Salt Lake City, Utah, a few years ago.

Because of Turner's great speed and endurance the contest promises to be just about the best of the spicy affairs Manager Mahoney has been staging all season.

QUARTERMASTER'S CORPS READY FOR "Y" GAMES

The Quartermaster's Corps will be well represented at the Employed Boys' meet at the Boston "Y" Saturday night. Harry Chaudy, formerly of Kindrge Tech and English High; Carroll O'Brien, another ex-English High runner; Arthur Bezzaro and Frank Silva, formerly of East Boston High, will compose the corps' relay team. Silva will also compete in the "800."

Sport News Over the Wire

Philadelphia—Lemont Richards, New York and Sidney Bolk, Germantown Academy, Jr. Davis Cup team, defeated Miss Edith Cross Cheiter, in the finals of the Junior Middle-states doubles tennis championship, 4and Wanamaker's 6-3, 6-0, 6-4.

Philadelphia, N. C.—Mrs. M. P. Lewis, Bellaire Spring and G. S. Mead, Allen Ridge won the Class B prize, annual Tin Whistle race, Pocono, 90.38-78. First prize went to Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd and Parker W. Whittemore, Brookline.

Los Angeles—Ralph De Palma set a new world record for the Santa Monica course, 10.22, for the seven and three-eighths miles, an average speed of 104 miles per hour.

BASEBALL NEWS AND GOSSIP

It won't be Duffy Lewis' fault if he doesn't get in his old Red Sox form for Miller Huggins. He's en route from that dear Fresno, Cal., to Hot Springs, Ark., where he plans taking a course of baths before reporting at the Jacksonville training camp.

* * *

Laughing Larry Doyle has signed with the Giants. He was the last of Mr. Graw's regulars to come to terms.

* * *

Old Herman Schaefer is back with McGraw. It's Germany no longer, but Liberty, if you please. McGraw plans using the old boy as a scout, though fans all around the circuit hope he'll be back up there on the lines.

* * *

Allan Russell, spitball hurler, has been swung into line by Miller Huggins. Dutch Leonard and Ernie Shore remain out of the fold. Also Mogridge and Fisher—and Baker and Pratt, too.

* * *

Jess Barnes has been mustered out of the army at Fort Riley, Kansas, and will go South with the first string of Giants. He's already accepted the club's terms.

* * *

Ty Cobb has not yet signed with the Tigers. Owner Navin claims he isn't worrying, as he's ready to give him exactly his old figure, $15,000, and all Winter has been led to believe the price suits. As regards Donie Bush, it's different. Donie drew down about $6,000 last year, and is holding out for a $1,500 boost

* * *

Chicago fans are much enthused over the news that Grover Alexander has been ordered home from over there. And well they should be.

Philadelphia, March 11.—Johnny Kilbane, champion featherweight of the world, retains his title simply because they do not give decisions in this city.

He was beaten all the way through six rounds by Frankie Brown of New York, and did not have a single session to his credit

Many of those at the ringside claimed that Brown knocked Kilbane out in the third. The champion was floored a dozen or quite groggy. Brown's friends assert that he performed twice the day or night, for the champion is counting very slowly.

Mars and Mercury Meet

LOW in the west, just after sunset tonight, the "planet of war," Mars, and the "messenger of the gods," Mercury, will be seen only about one degree apart, looking like a team of stars. Mercury is the northernmost one. Mercury is moving out from the sun's place in the sky, and Mars in toward that place. Mars is more than a hundred million miles farther away than Mercury.

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

CHAPTER LXXXVIII

Copyright, 1919, King Features Syndicate Inc.

"YOU'RE a charter member of the early bird family, Mrs H.," exclaimed Carlotta Sturges as she fastened the blue and red and gold service ribbon around my car. "See, the other ambitious ones are still sleeping up for us—so I've time to wise you up to a trick or two."

She was making it very evident that she'd elected herself guide and counsellor, and was going to "personally conduct" my first day at the Canteen. I wasn't a bit sure, however, that I wanted to appear under the auspices of this sassy young person who fairly pasted on the rouge—and who I'd assumed that friends of the same Pat were friends of each other." But Miss Sturges rattled on:

"You want to persuade our lieutenant—'Lootie,' we call her, 'cos she's such a stern old pirate—that you're no dove gray in manner as your uniform, and full of scarlet pepper when it comes to slinging manna at the boys. Get me?"

"I'm not sure I don't," replied faintly.

"Sure, you do. You speak English. Now pack what I'm going to tell you in your gray storage warehouse and not comprehending when Lootie rattles it off in a minute or two.

And a Lot More

"Don't slosh any silver around on the pristine whiteness of your table 'till there's a boy or so there to manipulate it. Make 'em figure out what they can afford off the old plates, and if you sling 'em extras, remember that it goes on your check when you snatch a bite later. Shine up to the dames at the counters who cut the cake and pie—but remember that no matter how fond they grow of filling your orders, a pie still has to make ten pieces. And never forget to write your 'kitchen number' on your order slip, and if the fillings for your tray don't come as fast as you like—why be amiable, Anne, and remember there are twenty-five to a unit. I guess that will be about all!"

"I should hope so. Will the lieutenant tell me still more?" I gasped.

"She'll tell you a whole bookful," declared Miss Sturges. "You listen with both your ears simultaneously. And then you keep your eyes and mind wide open. I'll help out whenever I see you looking as if you'd mixed your signals. Come on, now—look Lemuren—and I'll present you to Lootie."

It seemed to me that no one could ever look demure enough to neutralise the fact that the flamboyant Carlotta Sturges was presenting her. Our lieutenant waved her aside and pounced upon me with the announcement that she had looked up my references in the weekly, and, both because of my husband's army record, family position and my own standing at Haldane's, she was going to give me a real business woman's job first thing. That 'job' turned out to be acting as cashier in place of the worker who had disappointed the unit.

"The rush didn't start till five, so I had plenty of time to familiarise myself with methods. A handful of change, a pleasant word, and the pay boys, as red toward the plate of cigarettes that were given free. Carlotta Sturges kept strolling over to offer me advice, and I found myself borrowing her methods of expression even while I reflected proudly that I was by now wearing two and wielded "importance" at a bargain.

Then all in a second she was gone. At once I opened a box of the cigarettes and spilled its contents on the almost empty tray before me. I saw a flash of pink. Sturges darted across the room and blocked off the age [illegible] signal.

A Quick Warning

"I gave you those also de purpose," she said coolly.

"She didn't tell me so herself, but that she wanted the boys to have the smokes and was too shy—"

"She'd be pleased to fire you if she thought you'd even planned to ring in any anonymous gift on our boys. Might be from a Hun we wisher. Dump 'em out—if that tray—[illegible] tell her how cautious you were. Then you'll be all right for keeps."

But then the dinner rush began and I was so busy making change and offering smiles that I left long after 8:30 without thought of my opportunity to say a good word for the girl who had so generously helped me through my first day.

Carlotta Sturges walked up the street with me to my car line, and as she was leaving me she said, carelessly

"Glad I was there to wise you up a little, Mrs. H. May not see you again for an age or two. I'm going on another unit, Lootie and I don't hitch."

Was there no regret in my voice? I couldn't be sure. And I couldn't ask. So I thanked her, said goodnight and got on my car. I rode a block or two and then I fairly dashed off the car and hurried up the dark side strut to the wise avenue

Breathlessly I ran up the avenue. I must reach our lieutenant in time to save Carlotta the humiliation of dismissal from the canteen.

Hints for the Invalid

By Brice Belden, M. D.

WHEN recovering from acute infectious disease one should pay particular attention to the matter of nutrition. As a general rule, this is more important than the question of medicine.

Meals should be eaten at regular hours, but milk should be taken between them.

The digestive powers are subnormal after acute illness, so that time must be given the stomach to digest each meal before additional food is taken; hence the necessity of regularity in taking meals.

Milk is easily assimilated, so advantage may be taken of this fact to increase nutrition without unduly taxing the stomach.

Occasionally there are persons who think they cannot drink milk. They insist that it disagrees with them. In such cases it may be rendered very acceptable to the stomach by the addition of citrate of soda to five grain powder to each glass of milk).

Eggs are most digestible when coddled, or parboiled. They should be placed in cold water and brought to a boil and then promptly removed from the fire. They may also be taken soft-boiled or in the form of custard.

Breakfast may consist of fruit, cereals, milk and bread and butter; dinner of soups, fish or meat, vegetables and bread and butter; supper of eggs, stewed fruit, pudding and milk.

Take a bath every day; it may be warm but not cool, and as convalescence advances it should be taken cooler.

At least eight hours of sleep are needed more will probably be required for awhile.

A Home Made Gray Hair Remedy

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 4 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Directions for mixing and use come in each box.

You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphide or any aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

It not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look distinctly years younger.—Advertisement.

The New Home Treatment for Ugly, Hairy Growths

(Boudoir Secrets.)

Here is a simple yet very effective method for removing hair and fuzz from the face, neck and arms: Cover the objectionable hairs with a paste made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. Leave this on for 2 or 3 minutes then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are vanished. No pain or inconvenience attends this treatment, but results will be certain if you are sure to get real delatone.—Advertisement.

Housewives Who Dared

How One Woman Added to Her Small Income by Conducting Movies

By Loretto C. Lynch

THERE were lots of stories afloat about that house. Some of the older inhabitants remembered the day the original owner mysteriously disappeared. But for over [illegible] years no one had lived in it. Sure she must have heard some of the stories about the old house. Yet there was the moving van backed up to the house. Who was the woman who dared to live in that house?

Soon the curiosity of the suburbanites was to be satisfied, for that same afternoon she came, according to the [illegible] who first beheld her [illegible] out from over plump for [illegible] prevailing view, she wore a [illegible] dark [illegible] serge [illegible] red [illegible] Three children, two boys and a girl, accompanied her. Why had she [illegible]

Mrs. Harrison had lived in a large city since her marriage. Her husband's small salary had not been increased during the war, and for the past year the family had felt the pinch of wartime prices. They lived on the cheapest, plainest food, yet the $25 they had to pay for the little house in which they lived seemed out of proportion to the husband's income.

Became Caretaker

Along about this time the estate of which the house of mystery was a part, was settled. For thirty years it had been in the courts. Now the new owner had repaired it and decided to engage a caretaker until real estate began to come into its own once more and rise in value after $30 without thought of my opportunity to say a good word for the girl who had so generously helped me through my first day.

Carlotta Sturges walked up the street with me to my car line, and as she was leaving me she said, carelessly

"Glad I was there to wise you up a little, Mrs. H. May not see you again for an age or two. I'm going on another unit, Lootie and I don't hitch."

Finally Bought Machine

She rented a screen and bought a second-hand moving picture machine on the installment plan. Later she bought the screen outright.

There were usually three pictures. Mrs. Harrison paid twenty-five dollars for the rental of the three films. She charged twenty-five cents admission to adults and children alike. There were usually two hundred people in the living room of the old haunted house every Wednesday evening. Along toward spring, Mrs. Harrison found it necessary to give a matinee on Wednesday as well as the evening performance.

Mrs. Harrison was able to add twenty to thirty dollars a week to the family bank account, and when after a year and a half she stopped to count up there was over seven hundred dollars in the little bank account.

Any woman similarly situated might do as Mrs Harrison did. She did not have to break up her home or leave it in order to add to the family income. She was just another of the "housewives who dared."

Timely Warning

A sturdy tramp went into a suburban garden where the lady of the house was occupied in attending to her flowers. He took no notice of her refusal to give him some coppers, but continued to annoy her until a large dog appeared, barking loudly. The lady seized his collar and held it, calling out, "You had better go, it may bite." "You ain't got no right to keep a savage dog!" replied the tramp. "Perhaps I have not," she answered coolly, "if you think so, I won't keep him. I'll let him go!"

Medical Advice

Chemist: "Thermometer you mean, ma'am, I suppose?"

Farmer's wife, eagerly: "Yes, sir, that's it. And if you'll be so kind, sir, to set it to 65 I shall be much obliged, 'cause that's what the doctors says I'm to keep the room at!"

No Repetition

Private Harrowson had fallen out twice on the route march, and as they were nearing home he once more was ordered to rest by the roadside. The sergeant strode up to him. "Now, my lad, he said, you've got to join the regiment. You ought to be in the Royal Air Force —they only let you fall out once there."

The Very Latest in New Fashions

Here is the newest version of the cape coat, a model of navy blue French serge. It has arm openings in the regular place and also just above the pockets; silk stitchery outlines the yoke, the lining is printed foulard.

If you find the belted suit more becoming, you will like this model in blue French serge lined with pekin de cygne. Small roll lapels are the trimming. The wide belt of the skirt, with nickel buttons to match the others, gives the effect of a vest. The hat is of black or brown Isere straw and ribbon.

The Heart Breaker

CHAPTER XLVI.

AFTER a telephone conversation that was at least ten minutes in length, Mildred Brent restored the receiver to its hook and went into the library, humming a gay little tune.

Her air of innocence irritated Honora, who laid down her paper and spoke sternly.

"What did Tom Chandler want?"

"What do you mean?" she evaded.

"I mean that it seems strange that a man with whom you quarreled should call you up as soon as he comes to town on a furlough. I cannot understand it."

"I suppose it does not occur to you that he likes me and enjoys talking to me," Mildred retorted.

Her sister's tone changed. "Milly," she urged, "sit down for a minute, dear. I want to talk to you."

"Can't you talk as well if I stand up?" the other objected.

"Certainly," Honora forced herself to answer calmly. "Only I hoped we might come to an understanding without either of us losing our tempers. So it would be well to go slowly."

"Well, go on then," Mildred rejoined. "What have you to say?"

"I hope you will not resent it, dear," Honora began. "But I feel that perhaps you have forgotten that you were disgusted with Tom Chandler because of his habits and associates. He is the same man now that he was before he enlisted."

"He is not necessarily the same man!" Mildred contradicted. "The war has changed lots of fellows. You know that as well as I."

An Argument

"The war!" The exclamation was contemptible in spite of the speaker's endeavor to be patient. "What does Tom Chandler know of the war after a few months spent in camp on this side the Atlantic? I acknowledge that the experience of the men on the fighting front have made new beings of some of them. They faced danger and death there, and such things try men's souls—and awaken them to what is true and right. But a lily white in a New England training camp will not transform a man's entire nature."

"You don't want to believe that there is any good at all in Tom," Mildred accused.

"I do believe he has possibilities for good. But that is beside the question, Milly. What puzzles me is how he dared call you up today. You certainly gave me to understand that you and he had parted in anger."

"And I was a fool to tell you of it," Mildred declared. "Yes, we did part in anger. Then when I saw that he was willing to do what some model young men shrink from doing—and when he proved this by enlisting—I tried to think kindly of him."

Honora Interferes

"Did you write and tell him so?"

"I did not. But when he sent me a post-card the other day saying he was coming home for a few days, I decided that I would bury the hatchet. So I just wrote him a postcard back again with the words 'All right,' on it. That was all. Certainly nobody—not even you—could object to that."

There was a long silence. Mildred moved restlessly.

"Well?" she demanded. "Have you anything else to say?"

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays, we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Advertisement.

The Wonderful Crayfish

A LITTLE BROTHER TO THE LOBSTER

By Garrett P. Serviss

A SCHOOLGIRL asks for information about the crayfish, to which she says she has become greatly interested on account of the remarkable statements made about it by her teacher. She appears to doubt some of the things she has read concerning its molting, and is puzzled by the assertion that it "is, in one way, an insect."

When young people are so eager to learn that they pursue their studies, independently, outside of school, they are sure to become the leaders and instructors of the next generation while, on the other hand, there is no better proof that a boy, or a teacher, is doing good work than the arousing of [illegible] an overflow of intellectual curiosity among the pupils.

For the Student

The crayfish is an extremely instructive animal for the student and the thinker. Professor Huxley selected it as a pattern to serve for an introduction to the study of zoology. The statement that it is in one way an "insect" is based upon the fact that it belongs to the class "Crustacea," which, like the class "Insecta," forms a part of the great "Arthropoda" phylum, or division of the animal kingdom and all the arthropodes are alike in that their bodies are made up of segments, more or less closely joined together, and furnished with jointed appendages, such as antennæ and legs. The word "arthropod" means "jointed leg."

Spiders, which are not scientifically included among insects, belong to another class of the Arthropoda, called Arachnida. But, notwithstanding these resemblances, crayfish are no more insects than apes and monkeys are men.

The crayfish, like its relatives, lobsters, crabs, etc., carries its "skeleton" outside, for the animal has no bones, but is enclosed in a kind of shell, or husk, composed of a substance called chitin, and this is so unyielding that, as the crayfish grows, it has to molt, i. e., shed its old shell and get a new and larger one in the place of it.

Through a Split

The animal escapes out of a split that forms across the back, and so complete is the casting-off that even the transparent covering of the eyes, which are placed on movable stalks, goes along with the rest. Young crayfish molt as many as eight times in the first year of their growth, and five in the second, but later, like other animals, they grow more slowly, and are content to change their outer husks once or twice a year.

The infinite adjustments of nature to the conditions in which living creatures are placed are admirably shown by such things as the arrangement through which the external sense of touch is provided for in the crayfish, whose chitinous covering, insensitive in itself, is pierced in certain places by bristly hairs that are outgrowths from the sensitive substance beneath the hard shell. But when the crayfish is stripped of its cover by the process of molting it is, for a time, in a somewhat pitiable state.

The process is often fatal to the animal, and if, until its new soft covering hardens, in a defenseless condition. A curious, but evident, fact is that the growth of the animal must take place by leaps [illegible] spread by one continuous, graduated increase, for as long as the old coat is retained there can be no expansion, and as soon as the new one has hardened growth must cease, to be resumed at the next molting.

Youthful Imagination

Mr. Dimberly, going home one evening, found his two children—a boy of eight and a girl of six—busily engaged on the dining-room floor with his new box of cigars. "What are you doing with those cigars?" he asked. "Oh, father," said the boy, pointing to the remnants of brown tobacco, that littered the carpet, "we was pretending that they was khaki soldiers and we took off their puttees and now we can't get them on again!"

THIN PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

"Take plain bitro-phosphate" is the advice of physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation to warrant the recommendation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need

Miss Josephine Dana, reporting her own experience with BITRO PHOSPHATE, says: "It is remarkable what it did for me. After a few days I began to notice a return of the vigor of life, was able to sleep soundly and all my little troubles seemed to disappear. I gained twelve pounds in four weeks."

more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by all the large Boston drug stores and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a seven pound increase in appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, disappear, dull eyes become bright and pale cheeks glow with the warm hue of perfect health.

CAUTION: Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness owing to its marked flesh giving properties, it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

COTTON PRICES MIXED AT MARKET OPENING

New York, March 11.—The cotton market had an irregular opening this morning on old contracts. March was up 53 points, and other quotations were 20 points higher to 10 points lower. New contracts started at an advance of 15 points to a decline of 19 points. Dealings again consisted largely of liquidation of old-style contracts for transferring hedges to new styles. After the outset the market eased a little, old crop months selling about 20 points down from the highest on the call, and the new crop deliveries about 25 points down.

Opening prices were: March, old, $4.70; May, old, 22.95, new, 23.05; July, old, 22.25, new, 22.35; October, old, $0.86, new 20.95; December, old, 20.85, new, 20.95; January, old, 20.85, new, 20.85.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, March 11.—Corn opened ⅛ to ¼ cent lower. Oats were ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. Provisions opened higher. Opening prices were: Corn, March, 1.44; May, 1.35¾ to 1.36; July, 1.25¾ to 1.26. Oats, May, 63¾ to ¾; July, 63¾ to ¾. Ribs, May, 24.77; July, 23.52.

Millions of Phones

At the end of last year the telephone stations which constitute the Bell system in the United States numbered 10,932,325, an increase of $16,647 in a year.

Grain Reserves Under Average

On March 1 this country's grain reserves were below the average, according to an official estimate of the supply on farms, only 484,476,000 bushels of corn of the 1918 crop remained with farmers, or about 30 per cent. less than a year ago.

MARKET BROAD AND TRADING ACTIVE

Steels, Rails and Oils Higher, While Shipping Issues Rally

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York, taking the list as a whole in the afternoon, although there were some weak spots in the market. Specialties on Wall street were higher as classes, rails had advanced and coppers were lower. Trading was more active than during midday.

Gains of a point or o'clock included General Motors 1¼, at 160¼ after selling at 160¾, its highest for the year; St. Paul 1, at 39¾; Reading 1¾, at 85¾; Union Pacific 1½, at 131½; New Haven 1¾, at 33½; Southern Pacific ⅝, at 104⅝; Beet Sugar 1¾, at 74¾; American Woolen common 1¼, at 67¼, after selling at the highest record price of 67¾; United Cigar Stores 2⅝, at 134¾; Tobacco Products 1⅝, at 79¾; U. S. Steel ¾, at 96¾; Mexican Petroleum ½, at 183½, and Bethlehem B , at 70½.

BOSTON MARKET IMPROVES.

The Boston market had improved aside from coppers. United Fruit was a feature, selling at its highest since 1913. American Woolen preferred and United Shoe sold at their highest since 1917. Massachusetts Electric preferred sold at its lowest for this year and as low as it did in 1918. Trading here was of good volume, measured by its usual activity.

Gains as 3 o'clock included United Fruit, 4 at 174, its highest in six years; Agricultural Chemical 2⅝ at 107; Island Oil ⅝ at 8¼; New Haven ¼ at 33; Steel ⅛ at 96⅛; American Woolen preferred 1 at 93½; United Shoe sold at 50, and U. S. Smelting 1⅝ at 49⅝. Among declines were American Telephone ⅝ at 107⅛; Boston & Maine 1¼ at 39½; Copper Range 1 at 41; Massachusetts Electric preferred 1 at 9, after selling as low as 8½; Admiralty ¼ at 68, and Swift 1 at 123.

DULL AT THE OPENING.

The market was dull at the opening, with prices irregular as to changes up or down, and for a few minutes trading was quiet. While the supply of stocks was scanty at the outset, offerings increased in volume within a few minutes and prices began to recede. The market was rather weak for half an hour, but it had a firmer understone during the remainder of the morning. The rally was not pronounced, however. By noon issues showing gains numbered more than those showing losses. But the price range was still narrow, and aside from a few specialties gains averaged as little as declines.

SOME ISSUES WERE STRONG.

Among the strongest stocks were Agricultural Chemical, which is in demand because the sale of fertilizers is expanding, and Great Northern Ore, whose directors have declared a $2 a share dividend. Issues to sell during the morning at their highest for the year included General Motors, Allis Chalmers and Bethlehem B, while American Woolen common sold at its record highest. A record high price was attained by Agricultural Chemical during the noon hour. There was nothing in domestic or foreign news which had much market influence. Trading was active, although the price trend was indecisive. One hour transactions totalled around 300,000 shares, or at the rate of a million and a half for a day. The number of small lots dealt in indicated that the public is speculating. Trading diminished in the second hour and business was comparatively quiet at midday.

WALL STREET IS BULLISH.

Sentiment on Wall street is bullish, mostly because trade reports are encouraging in the main. Rails were active as well as strong for a while during the morning, with Reading and Southern Pacific as leaders. Steels were higher as a class, but U. S. Steel moved within a narrow price range. Coppers were quiet and shipping issues were weak until afternoon, when they showed gains. General Motors was the strongest issue in its group. United Cigar Stores was a strong specialty.

WAR GROWTH OF THIS COUNTRY'S SHIPPING

Before the war only 9.7 per cent. of merchant ships sailed under the American flag, but today this country's merchant marine comprises 45 per cent. of shipping between United States and foreign ports. American tonnage is about one-fifth of the world's total, including 251 freighters, 84 freight and passenger vessels, seven freight, passenger and refrigerator vessels, 71 steam tankers and 236 sailing vessels.

MORE COPPER MINING DIVIDEND REDUCTIONS

The directors of Ahmeek Mining Company have declared a quarterly dividend of $1. Previous dividend was $2. The latest dividend is payable March 31 to stock of record March 15.

The directors of the Osceola Consolidated Mining Company have declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share. Three months ago $2 was paid. The latest dividend is payable March 31 to stock of record March 1.

February Copper Output

Production of copper during February by three mining companies was as follows: Greene-Cananea, 3,000,000 pounds; Inspiration, 6,400,000 pounds; Shattuck-Arizona, 376,166 pounds.

Britain's National Debt

Since 1914, the year in which the great war began, Great Britain's national debt has increased from $3,530,770,550 to $20,605,479,095.

COPPER METAL PRICE HAS A LOWER TREND

Leading copper selling interests are now asking 15 cents a pound delivered for metal or 14⅞ f. o. b. New York, while small dealers are quoting 14⅜ to 14⅞ cents delivered, and it is said that the market has an easier tone. Copper sold yesterday as low as 14⅜ cents a pound, and this is said to have been the lowest price for the year to date.

It is understood that the Europe's copper supply is 1,000,000,000 pounds and held principally in the United Kingdom, France and Italy. Germany and Austria are bare of red metal. Refined copper in this country exceeds 1,000,000,000 pounds, exclusive of government holdings of 140,000,000 pounds. The amount of scrap copper and brass on hand in the United States is estimated at 100,000,000 pounds.

More will be known about the European copper situation after the committee sent abroad by the Copper Export Association returns and reports. It is expected home late this month. American copper authorities who have returned from Europe doubt if there will be any demand for this country's copper until late in the year.

WILSON AND CO.'S BIG EARNINGS LAST YEAR

Wilson & Co., packers, report for 1918 a balance for common stock equal to 34.43 a share, compared with 28.86 a share for the preceding year. Its surplus totals $19,739,232, against $15,051,945 for 1917. Net profit of $7,621,555 was made possible by sales aggregating $400,000,000. The amount set apart for taxes was not stipulated, but the tax reserves in the balance sheet are $2,500,000, almost double the previous year. The current liabilities are only about $36,000,000, against about $80,000,000 current assets, including $8,844,050 cash.

President Thomas E. Wilson says: "The future of the packing industry seems promising and for some years it will be necessary for close cooperatin among the producers, packers, the government (always keeping in sight the interest and welfare of the consumers) to properly take care of our share of the burden in helping feed the rest of the world."

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, March 11.—The sub-treasury gained $5,071,000 from the banks on Monday, making a cash net gain since Friday of $4,452,000.

Do YOU want to make $500 grow into $20,000, as many others HAVE done?

HERE is an opportunity for you to make a sound, safe investment in a dividend paying Preferred Stock, yielding eight per cent per year. But WITH the preferred stock goes COMMON stock which means a full share in the PROFITS.

These are the securities of an established, very successful and rapidly growing Motor Truck Company whose sales are expanding every week. Its net earnings for LAST year were very considerably more than the amount of the dividend on the Preferred Stock. The NEW BUSINESS now in hand will earn the Preferred Dividend many times over.

By all the rules which govern sound investments your money is SAFE in the Preferred Stock. The Common Stock may do for you what Billy Grove's common stock did for him.

Billy Grove was a clerk in the Downey House, Lansing, Mich. In 1904 he put $1,000 in the original issue of Reo Motor stock. To-day his fortune is counted at $119,000. There are many like Billy Grove who enjoy incomes of thousands of dollars every year from the COMMON STOCK of automobile concerns which cost them but a few hundred.

A Few Examples.

In eight years the investment of $1,000 in stock of the Chalmers Motor Company grew to $16,666 stock and earned $9,297 cash dividends. In six years $1,000 stock of the Stutz Motor Car Company of Indiana grew to $2,000 stock and earned $21,750 in cash dividends. In the Hudson Motor Car Company $1,000 stock grew to $20,000 stock in FOUR YEARS and in addition the company paid cash dividends which have not been made public. In the Hup Motor Car Company $1,000 stock grew in seven years to $40,000 stock and earned $48,160 cash dividends.

In the Reo Motor Car Company in thirteen years $1,000 stock grew to $12,000 stock and earned $12,850 cash dividends. In addition the company in 1913 distributed to its stock holders $600,000 stock in the Reo Motor Truck Company, equal to a 30% dividend, and THEN, afterward, paid a 7% cash dividend on the stock of the Truck Company.

Due to the rapid growth of the Motor Industry it has been customary for concerns with large earnings to declare stock dividends to stockholders. Thus a company with 10,000 shares of common stock and net earnings of $3,000,000 for the year would be able to pay a cash dividend of $3,000 to each owner of $1,000 of common stock. But rather than make such an unbalanced payment they would probably—as they frequently do—first increase the capitalization and give each owner of $1,000 of common stock perhaps $10,000 MORE common stock and THEN pay a cash dividend of 25%, giving him $3,000 in cash on the common stock which he then owned. Its MARKET value, or the price a stock paying such dividends should bring in case the owner wanted to sell it, would probably be about $44,000. One good year with business conditions prosperous has enabled not a few automobile companies to make net earnings of OVER $3,000,000. That is how so many comfortable fortunes have grown from very small investments in the MOTOR Industry. That is why it is entirely possible for YOU to place $500 in the Preferred Stock we offer you, have your money safely and soundly invested with an excellent opportunity to have the COMMON stock which goes with the preferred grow to $20,000 or more in a time not far distant.

Motor Truck Profits

In the Federal Motor Truck Company $1,000 stock grew in six years to $30,000 stock and earned $12,180 cash dividends. What the automobile concerns did in the way of large earnings the successful Motor Truck companies are JUST BEGINNING TO DO.

The war has revolutionized the use of Motor Trucks and the movement of freight, raw materials and merchandise. Every one knows that Motor Trucks won the war, that their wonderful mobility, strength, lasting qualities and great carrying capacity enabled us to arm, equip and maintain over three million men with unheard-of speed and that the armies and peoples of all Europe learned the need and value of Motor Trucks just as we learned it. What few of the general public know is that the vast, but exactly tabulated, records of war use show that a horse or mule CONSUMES twenty-five per cent as much as it PRODUCES. A standard Motor Truck consumes LESS than ONE PER CENT as much as it produces, and this consumption includes operation, maintenance, repairs and replacements. Moreover, the life of a Motor Truck working at full capacity every day is twice as long as the life of a horse or mule working at full capacity every day. During the war horses working at maximum capacity for ten consecutive days were often killed by the strain of those ten days.

Now that the war is over the whole world has waked up to the imperative need of Motor Trucks. Europe has never learned quantity production of automobiles or trucks. South America, Africa and Asia are not machinery manufacturing countries. America is the Motor Truck builder for the world.

Unparalleled Demand

The demand for trucks for commercial use THIS YEAR is greater than ALL the trucks built in this country for private use in the last FOUR YEARS. Just as the freight carrying business of the railroads entirely dwarfed the passenger carrying business, so the demand for the freight carrying motor truck is beginning to RUN AWAY from the passenger carrying automobiles. It is becoming so that a man CAN have a pleasure car if he feels he can afford it, but he MUST have a FLEET of Motor Trucks in his business or he cannot hope to equal the low costs of his competitors.

At the Chicago and New York Motor Truck Shows just concluded the Truck Company whose stock we offer you was besieged by Truck dealers who sought to place orders for more trucks for THIS YEAR than the company has manufactured in the last THREE years, and their output has been large.

You CAN'T turn the clock back ten years and buy the original issue of Reo stock and so run $1,000 into $119,000, like Billy Grove did. But you CAN secure stock in this Motor Truck Company which has the opportunity for growth and earnings in the next three years to a volume which should make pleasure car earnings look SMALL.

Assets.

The Truck Company has a splendid property of 43 acres within 30 miles of New York City. Its fifteen buildings are the last word in modern construction. The assets directly behind the Preferred Stock we offer you are vastly greater than the outstanding preferred. Its facilities, buildings, machinery and equipment are all complete and are ready for an increase of output to FOUR TIMES the present output.

Management.

Its management consists of men prominent in the Motor Industry since its inception, successful in the extreme and known throughout the nation. They are leaders in the industry and are particularly well known to the best dealers throughout the country, whose confidence they possess through many years of fair dealing and mutual profit.

The department heads are men who have spent their lifetimes in quantity production and the workmen are of a grade so superior that it would be difficult to duplicate this organization.

Type of Truck.

The company manufactures a one and one-half ton truck, and records show that 76% of ALL merchant users and 90% of ALL farmers require this type of truck. In addition the company manufactures a powerful, sturdy, short coupled chassis which pulls two-wheeled bodies of three and one-half and five ton capacity. Thus it serves EVERY need of industry, which is why the volume of available orders is so great.

Security.

There are no bonds or other obligations ahead of the stock we offer you. There is directly behind the Preferred Stock assets in property, factory buildings, material, trucks in process of manufacture and completed shipments on the road to dealers far greater than the total Preferred issued or now offered. That is why you can consider your money to be so safely and soundly invested in this Preferred, which has a record of paying 8% dividends.

Use for the Money.

This offering of Preferred and Common stock is to provide funds to increase production through the purchase of materials. There is a need for OVER a quarter of a million of trucks THIS YEAR in this country and abroad, MANY TIMES more than can possibly be supplied. The orders available to this Truck Company are TWENTY-ONE TIMES its output for last year. If it can supply the needs of the territory served by its BEST dealers it will mean an increase over last year's production of 6,000 trucks and ADDITIONAL earnings of over $1,200,000, to say NOTHING of the demand from many NEW dealers and for export. Its trucks are in use in fifteen foreign countries NOW and repeat orders for export are increasing every week.

It is a big year for earnings on the Common stock. It may be YOUR chance to do what Billy Grove did.

How You Get the Common Stock.

Every purchaser of two shares of Preferred stock which is sold at its par value of $10.00 is entitled to buy one share of Common stock for $1.00.

You can buy on the Partial Payment Plan if you prefer.

In our opinion there is no security offered in the market to-day which combines to give you the opportunity of sound, sure, safe investment of your money in a high grade 8% Preferred Stock with a record of earnings and dividends behind it, and at the same time the opportunity of making a fortune, as Billy Grove did, from the enormous expansion of an industry due to world changes which never CAN occur again in our lifetime.

You Can Trade In Other Securities.

Torrey & Company are specialists in Automotive Stocks and Bonds, but we handle other securities as well. Our business in the New York and other markets is large and growing. If you have investments in other Preferred Stocks or Bonds which yield less than 8%, or if they do not give you the very great profit which is offered you by the Common Stock of this Truck Corporation, we shall be glad to quote you the market price on your present securities and, if you desire, sell them for you.

AUTO DEALERS PREPARING FOR SHOW

Record Number Registered to Exhibit Is Guarantee of Success

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

With the Automobile Show only a few days away, every dealer in Boston is busy making arrangements for the greatest exhibition of motor cars that this city has seen. Despite the fact that the industry has been giving 100 per cent. of its efficiency to the government, many new models and unique ideas will be displayed.

The Automobile Show management is going to honor the commanding officers of the Yankee Division and the First Naval District by naming the different aisles at the show after them. The main aisle is to be called "Avenue Edwards," another "Avenue Wood," in honor of Admiral Spencer Wood.

Avenues will bear the names of Brigadier-General Peyton C. March, Colonels Logan, Bunnell, Sherbourne, Lock, Parker, Rume and Hayes.

MYSTERY EXHIBIT.

A fortune is to be expended on the decorations for the show, which will be the most gorgeous setting ever arranged. More than ten thousand colored electric lights will branch forth Saturday afternoon when the show opens. In exhibition hall our co-operation with the Allies will be typified by over a hundred scenic tablets, the Stars and Stripes blending with the flags of other nations, surrounded by a golden sunburst centering over one of the huge basket frames which will be concealed by borders of electric lamps.

RECORD REGISTRATION.

Exquisitely modeled figures typifying the rewards of victory will border the promenade in "Avenue Edwards." These will be on marble pedestals, over which the flag of our nation will hang in graceful folds. The electric devices lighting Avenue Edwards will be striking. They will be composed of crystals and pendant silk ribbons in red, white and blue, these being fringed with glass drops.

Manager Chester I. Campbell predicts that it will be the greatest show ever staged in Boston, and that it will attract record-breaking crowds. More agents and dealers have already been registered than at any previous show.

New York and Chicago are far behind in the matter of exhibits. There will be seventy different makes of cars showing nearly four hundred different models on exhibition in mechanics building. There will be at least four cars that have never been exhibited here before. Over 250 manufacturers and agents of accessories have contracted for space and will show several thousand devices.

VICTORY JUBILEE FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

Melrose will give its second of a series of receptions to returning men from war on Friday evening in Memorial Hall when a Victory Jubilee in the direction of Grant Drake will take place. In addition to many noted soloists there will be a chorus of 100 trained voices, 200 school children, the First Corps of Cadets Band and other features.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN MARCH 11, 1919. BOSTON.

It Is Unpatriotic to Breed Racial Ill Feeling in America

The English political and financial leaders are wise and shrewd men. We think they are a little bit wiser and shrewder in their line than anybody else.

While some foolish Americans are still clamoring against the study and use of the German language, the presentation of German music, and the resumption of trade in German products, the British Imperial Commission on Education is arranging to make the study of the German language more common in English schools, British musicians are producing the works of German composers, and British commissions, both public and private, are making most extensive preparations to finance and to build up trade with the Germans.

With their customary common sense and shrewdness the British have been supplying the German population of Austria for weeks past with train-load after train-load of food, and are now supplying the Germans themselves with thousands of tons of necessary food, in spite of the technical continuance of the blockade.

British political leaders and financial and trading corporations are very well satisfied with every effort which is made in other countries to keep up hatred of the German people and to prolong boycotts of the German language and German trade—because the more of that sort of thing that goes on in France and in the United States the more England will obtain in the way of better feeling and larger trade with Germany.

Now, then, if all this is very sensible and very patriotic in England, then this good sense and patriotism ought to be imitated in America.

The hysterical men and women who still strive to keep up the passions of wartime, who still strive to excite hatred between Americans and Germans, who still clamor for a boycott of the German language, German art, German music and German trade, are not doing their country any good.

Every one who has any sense at all knows that we have to continue to live in the same world with the German people, and every one ought to have sense enough to know that it will be far better for us and far better for every other people to encourage the German people to establish their new found liberties and democracy upon a permanent foundation and to help them to struggle up out of the black abyss into which their former government plunged them and to regain once more their standing among the other nations upon a plane of mutual good understanding, justice, fair play and helpfulness all around.

Surely we ought to have as good sense as the British have.

Particularly harmful and downright foolish are the efforts here and there to excite and to prolong ill will between AMERICANS of German descent and the rest of us who are not of German descent. There are approximately sixteen million Americans who are of German blood, and no sensible and thinking man could possibly wish to keep such a large portion of our population in a condition of ostracism.

Just before he died Theodore Roosevelt reiterated and emphasized his indignation against those blatherskites who were trying to stir up ill-feeling against the German Americans, whether they had conducted themselves loyally or not. And every man whose brains are in his head must know that Mr. Roosevelt was exactly right in this matter.

The records of the army; the records of civilian service; the lists of bond buyers; the lists of contributors to war charities; and the honor rolls of those who fell fighting in France are full of names of German origin.

Now, then, it is gross ingratitude to those thousands and tens of thousands of German AMERICANS who measured up to every obligation of loyalty and citizenship during the war to permit hysterical notoriety mongers—not one of whom got within three thousand miles of a firing line—to abuse and to preach ostracism of these loyal and patriotic citizens, and to try to brand with unmerited ignominy these soldiers of ours and their parents who sent them forth to serve the country.

Whoever tries to breed bad feeling, sore feeling, sullen feeling, between Americans of English descent, Irish descent, Scandinavian descent, and those other Americans who are of Teutonic descent, is really trying to do our country a grave and serious injury.

That kind of work is not patriotic work, not useful work, not brave work, not wise work. It is unpatriotic, harmful and silly work, and the sooner that those who work at it are rebuked by the common sense of the rest of us the better it will be for the nation.

BE TRUTHFUL, BUT NOT DISCOURTEOUS

When you are asked your opinion of a certain thing, do you give an honest opinion, if you have one, or do you try to say the thing which you think will please the one who asks you the question?

Of course, you try to please; you are not around making enemies by saying things which might sound discourteous. That is the way you figure it out.

Not one in a hundred really care what your opinion is; the ninety and nine want to be flattered and bolstered up in their own way of thinking.

But what about the one sincere person who is seeking help?

Or you might point to the right road, and mark a turning point, in so-and-So's life if only you were honest in expressing your mind.

Of course, no one wants to give an unwelcome opinion, but the next time you are asked what you think, be honest, but not unsivil. Clothe your opinion in simple language and tell the truth.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Doughboy Dittics

Thoughts on Pie

At night, when we camped by the old chateau,
An' the yellow moon looked down,
I used to dream of a girl I know—
A girl in the old home town.
I dreamed o' the words she said to me
The day that we said goodby,
When I left her to cross the rollin' sea—
But mostly I dreamed o' pie!

For there's girls in England and girls in France
An' girls on the windin' Rhine;
You are always meetin' a lovin' glance
Anywheres up the line.
You can always sit in a game o' hearts
Where the ante's a gentle sigh,
But the scarcest thing in these foreign parts

An' now that the packet is headed home
An' the lights fade on the shore,
As I watch the gloaming begin to gloam,
I am dreamin' my dreams once more.
Again I dream o' that last goodby
Ere I sailed o'er the rollin' brine,
But mostly I dream of the big mince pie
That soon will be mine—all mine.

There'll be always girls, if you look around,
Wherever your feet may stray;
Whether you're outward or homeward bound,
They'll never be far away.
But when you're guardin' a dreary post
Or watchin' the shrapnel fly,
The thing that you sure will miss the most
Is that good old home-made pie!

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—Don't you know it was cruel of you to joke about "Auntie" who spent so much time picking hairs out of her chin? I am afflicted with superfluous hair, and being extremely sensitive about it, as all women who are so afflicted, I was terribly embarrassed when your article was read aloud at dinner at the home of a friend last night. It is the custom in this household to read your article aloud each day, and the boy who read it had no idea what it was about when he started. You may imagine, therefore, the embarrassment for all of us. Do you think it right to joke about an affliction?

San Jose, Cal. MARGARET M.

MY DEAR Margaret.
IN THE first place.
WHEN I wrote about "Auntie."
I DIDN'T give a thought.
TO SUPERFLUOUS hair.
BECAUSE SO far as I know.
"AUNTIE" HASN'T any.
SHE JUST has the habit.
OF PICKING at her chin.
AND DIGGING for hairs.
THAT REALLY aren't there.
AND THE folk in the house.
ALL JOSH her about it.
AND SHE doesn't mind.
SHE'S JUST like a man.
WHOM I used to know.
AND SOMETHING happened.
TO THIS man's hair.
AND A bald spot came.
ON ONE side of his head.
ALL NICE and shiny.
LIKE A billard ball.
AND FOR a while.
HE REFUSED to go out.
TO OTHER homes.
AND WOULDN'T go to the theatre.
OR TO any place.
WHERE CONVENTION demanded.
HE REMOVE his hat.
AND HIS disposition.
BEGAN TO sour.
AND THEN all at once.
HE TOOK hold of himself.
AND MADE up his mind
THAT HE wouldn't care.
AND HE started out.
AND WHEREVER he'd go.
HE'D BREAK the ice.
BY KIDDING himself.
AND HIS new bald spot.
AND IN a little while.
HE FORGOT all about it.
AND SO did his friends.
AND I know a girl.
WHO HAS hair on her chin.
AND REFERS to herself.
AS A bearded lady.
AND LAUGHS about it.
AND DOESN'T mind.
AND SHE'S married, too.
TO A very fine man.
WHO'S AS bald as a bat.
AND IT looks to me.
THAT THE greater affliction.
IS IN being sensitive.
GOD PUT the hair there.
AND YOU should worry.

I THANK you.

A LESSON IN THE SONGS OF THE WIND

By Winifred Black

LAST night the wind was out a-singing. It was cloudy in the evening and dull, and every few minutes it looked as if it were going to rain, but the Wind made up his mind to stop all that and out he came blowing away at a great rate and made short work of the clouds. And out came the Moon to keep the wild Wind company, and together for a few hours they ruled the world.

What a free creature he is, the Wind, and how I envy him! No railroad stations for him, no time table, either, no steamers to catch, no cars to meet, just puff and away, across the wild sea, over the desolate moors, through the deep forests, along the lonely road by the quiet lake. Hurrah, the Wind is a free fellow and a great traveler!

What strange songs he has been singing this last year or so over here in Europe—dull songs and songs of misery and despair, victory songs, songs of joy and love and faith triumphant over death. How many languages he has learned to speak and understand, Sir Wind, the boldest traveler of them all.

Last night he shook the trees in the ancient forest of Fontainebleau, and, oh, my heart ached for the forests of my dear native land so far, so far away. He roared round the old cathedral and nearly set the bells ringing, and I thought of little quiet churches far away at home in our own land, which wasn't even discovered when they began to build the old church here.

In Varying Moods

How the red Indians have always loved the wild Wind and listened to his singing centuries ago when Louis and Marie Antoinette held court at Old Versailles. The French King has turned to ashes, the great old red chief has slept for centuries in his low grave, but the Wind sings on as always.

Last night there was a strange music in his songs to me, for he sang of Peace, of Love and of brotherhood of man, and all the world seemed to be going in a great hosanna of rejoicing.

What was that strange humming chord, so delicate yet so uncertain, too, so vibrant, as if someone touched with light and loving fingers the silver strings of the harp? I listened and listened—why, it was plain enough. The telegraph wire opposite the window made a kind of harp and upon that the ancient traveler of the world played and made sweet humming music.

Like the bells it was and like a sob, and like full-throated laughter and like the voice of a mother who speaks the name of one whose face she will never see again in this world, and like a tremor that throbs in the accent of a sweet bride welcoming her dearly beloved husband home from danger and from desperate risks.

Wild music and sweet the Wind played on the harp and the wires last night, and how many hearts in desolate and mourning France beat in time to that weird music!

At home across the sea even the Wind is like an old friend.

Lessons of Sympathy

I shall never listen to the Wind again when I am safe and of good cheer with those I love about me without trying to remember some stranger who finds the language of my country hard and the people difficult to understand.

And when I have found him I shall seek him out and make him feel that he has friends around him, and that he is not, after all, so very far from home.

Thank you, Sir Wind, and the song you sang to my homesick heart last night—for teaching me this lesson of sympathy and consideration.

PATHETIC ROMANCE OF ENGLISH J. J. ASTOR

How John Jacob Astor—not the late Colonel, but the son of the old patriarch—William Waldorf, now Viscount Astor of England—waited ten years for his bride; and how he won her only after her husband had been killed in the Great War, and he himself had been desperately wounded twice, and lost a leg in the fray, is a pathetic romance prettily told in the next

What Is News? Germany, Hungry Or Not Hungry? Ford Against Ford.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

We learn about business day by day from Henry Ford.

He had a prosperous little enterprise that brought in forty or fifty millions a year. A little less than 60 per cent. went to Mr. Ford and the balance to minority stockholders. The latter brought suit to compel Mr. Ford to run the company their way.

Now, Ford is starting a new company and a new car. He will sell the car at a lower price than that of the original Ford car. To start a price cutting war against yourself is a development in political economy that was left to Mr. Ford.

The Mayor of New York forbids singing in the German language. Beethoven, Wagner, Schumann and Bach, who, according to Beethoven, should have been named "Ocean." All please take notice.

Hoover says wheat will go to $3.50 a bushel. And little Korea, taking eternal peace seriously and thinking that nobody will dare hit a little nation, announces that she is now independent of Japan. She had read what happened to the canary that came out and talked plainly to the cat.

The city of Cleveland has added 25 cents to the charge for burial permits. Life is expensive, coming and going.

A gentleman kills a lady with a razor because he is jealous. That happens all the time. But in this case the police found $150 in the lady's stocking—and you read it over again.

News interest is a queer thing. You read "Rockefeller makes a million" and are not interested. You read "Rockefeller lost a nickel" and read carefully. It takes a specialist to understand the news value.

There is a disagreement as to food conditions in Germany. Many American newspapers declare that there is no lack of food in Germany, that stories of starvation are "simply more German cunning."

On the other hand, Lloyd George, supported by Colonel House, denounces with savage energy the failure to feed starving German women and children. Lloyd George's convincing message was from the British General Plumer, second in command to Haig. Plumer warned that British soldiers in Germany would rebel if compelled to see women and children starving in the streets.

Lloyd George pointed out quite reasonably that the British General Plumer "could hardly be accused of pro-Germanism." Needless to say, however, he will be accused.

The Prince of Monaco, who holds the Kaiser responsible for the war, declares that the Kaiser, "with fury in his face," said to him in 1914: "If they oblige me to make war, the world will see what it never dreamed of."

In Berlin, according to the latest dispatches, two hundred Spartacides were lined up against a wall and shot dead by soldiers representing the German government. Now a dispatch from Amsterdam says that in Berlin suburbs sixty-two German soldiers were shot dead in revenge for the shooting of the Spartacides. No wonder Lloyd George says that the world is "standing on the edge of an abyss."

Lucky for the world that it has men as wise and determined as Wilson, Lloyd George and Clemenceau for advisors.

We are a patriotic people, love our soldiers, and yet—what is the character of a book about an American soldier now selling one hundred and fifty thousand copies? It is a book about a soldier and about war. Does it show the grandeur of the American soldier, his courage, his self-sacrifice? Not at all. The book that sells one hundred and fifty thousand copies is badly spelled, represents the soldier humorously, it is true, but convincingly as a mean-spirited, selfish, grafting ignoramus.

The book is typical knock-down and drag-out American humor and can do no harm. But it is enlightening.

If a man genius had written a book expressing eloquently the courage and self-sacrifice of millions of young men that went into the army, how many thousands do you think that he would sell? Not many.
